Allies Pass To Offense, FDR Reports

Calls On United Nations To Carry Common Aims Into Post-War Era.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The United Nations are entering the second year of their common effort by passing from the defensive to the offensive, and must carry their common aims into the post-war period to maintain and safeguard the peace of the world, President Roosevelt said at his press conference.

Recalling that on Jan 1, 1942, 26 nations signed the declaration by United Nations in Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said that "they have come to see that the maintenance and safeguarding of peace is the most vital single necessity in the lives of each and all of us."

"The world situation at that moment was grim indeed," he said. "Yet on that last New Year's day, these nations, bound together by the universal ideals of the Atlantic charter signed an act of faith that military aggression, treaty violation and calculated savagery should be remorselessly overwhelmed by their combined might and the sacred principles of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness be restored as cherished ideals of mankind.

"They thus created the mightiest coalition in history. Mighty not only for its overwhelming material force but still more for its eternal spiritual values. Three other nations have since joined the coalition.

"The unity thus achieved amidst dire danger has borne rich fruit. The United Nations are passing from the defensive to the offensive. . . ."

Men recognize the need of carrying the battle line unity into the post-war world to work for peace Mr. Roosevelt said.

"Our task on this New Year's day is three-fold, first, to press on with the massed forces of free humanity till the present bandit assault upon civilization is completely crushed, second, so to

A section of Pittsburgh's business district (top photo) is seen under water as the worst December flood in the history of the Ohio river made an estimated 30,000 homeless in Ohio Pennsylvania and West Virginia. A few of the 7,500 driven from their homes in the Pittsburgh area are seen (lower photo) sleeping in quarters arranged by the Red Cross.

FIVE INJURED OVER HOLIDAY

City, County Escape Fatal Mishaps While Nation's Toll Stands at 115.

Mansfield and Richland county escaped fatal holiday accidents yesterday while the death toll throughout the nation rose to 115. Five persons were treated in Mansfield General hospital as the result of traffic accidents on icy highways that imperilled motorists for the past 36 hours.

Lieut. Buford W. Dean, stationed with the U. S. army at Lubbock, Texas, and his wife, employed as a secretary at Fort Monmoth, N. J., were injured yesterday morning on U. S. Route 30-S, three miles east of Mansfield, when their car crashed into a motor freight truck.

The officer received a fractured left wrist bruises and forehead lacerations. His wife was treated for possible internal injuries, multiple lacerations about the face, a fractured left humerus and shock.

Lieut Dean told state highway patrolmen that the truck, driven by Mike J. Dubenski of Canton, stalled on the wrong side of the road as the driver attempted to pass another truck. His car crashed into the freight truck as he came up over the incline, patrolmen said.

Three other persons were also admitted to the hospital for treat-

11,000,000 Engaged In Civilian Program, Report Shows.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Approximately 11,000,000 persons are active in the nation's civilian defense program George S. Van Schaick disclosed in a round-up report of the OCD's activities last year.

Included on the roster are air-raid wardens auxiliary firemen and policemen aircraft spotters and thousands engaged in community services such as rationing child care housing.

DEWEY AT HELM

Takes Over Duties as New York Governor Today.

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP) Thomas E. Dewey the first Republican governor of New York in 20 years and a possibility for the presidency in 1944, began his administration today.

Dewey, 40, former racket-busting district attorney of New York county (Manhattan) and an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, took the oath yesterday.

In his inaugural address he promised whole-heartedly to co-operate with the national administration in prosecuting the war, but added: "In recognizing the need for joint action your state will neither evade nor surrender its responsibilities."

DRAFT BOARD'S FILES DISAPPEAR

Only Part of Files Stolen, Gas Coupons Vanish, Too.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — The war appears to be making some people desperate.

Someone of potential but unwilling draft material broke into draft board No. 1 and rifled the files of all folders from No 3251 to 3500.

And 42 gasoline ration coupons, each worth four gallons of gas, were stolen, along with four tubes, a tire, a wheel and a battery from an east side filling station.

MILK PRICES GO UP IN CITY

2 Dairies Announce Advance, Others Indicate They'll Also Increase.

Milk prices in the Mansfield area started advancing today.

Two of the four leading dairies serving the district announced increases today, a third said such an advance was probable and while employes of the fourth said they knew nothing of such raise, officials of the company were not available for comment.

In line with OPA regulations authorizing temporary advances of from one-half cent to two cents, the Page and Isaly dairies were selling milk today for 14 cents instead of 13 cents a quart and eight rather than seven cents a pint. Page officials said the change was effective as of Jan. 1 and affected chocolate milk as well as "white" milk. Isaly's price change became effective today and applied only to "white" milk so far although other products may soon be affected, they indicated.

Levering's prices remained the same but M. L. Levering said his company would "go along with the others" in whatever price schedule was adopted and that, in his opinion, an advance was probable. Employes of the Axtell Dairy said that so far there was no price change there.

Advances in the Mansfield area were occasioned, for the most part, by the fact that prices in cities,

Men Who Carried Out Attack Get High Praise and Air Force Decorations.

(Editor's Note: The following eye-witness account of the American bombing raid on Wake Island was told to International News Service by Second Lieut. Louis S. HEADQUARTERS OF THE SEVENTH U. S. AIR FORCE

Second Lieut. Louis S. Zamperini, 25, of Torrance, California was plenty excited when the Flying Fortress on which he was bombardier raided Wake island on Dec. 24 but he had experienced more scared and nervous moments while running on the University of Southern California track team.

"I have been more scared and nervous before a race than I was when we dived on Wake before turning loose our bombs," said the erstwhile miler and Olympic star. "I was plenty excited, but I really wasn't scared.

"The most exciting moment was when I released the bombs as we dived on the target. It was pretty grim. Enemy tracer bullets were flying toward us and the air was full of bursting anti-aircraft shells.

"When it was all over I discovered that I was grinning happily. The thrill was worth all the chances we took."

Zamperini gave his account of the raid just before ceremonies at which the men who carried out the

STILL ACUTE

East Seaboard Gas Shortage Brings New Conference.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The eastern seaboard gasoline and fuel oil shortages continued acute today as rationing and supply authorities resumed conferences on action to meet the new critical situation.

Experts of the office of Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes and the office of price administration were considering new means of tightening up existing regulations for both gasoline and fuel oil to effect supply savings wherever possible. Officials said, however, no new "freeze" or rationing measures were contemplated at the moment.

Ickes' office was expected to announce today petroleum quotas for January for each of the six zones of the 17-state eastern emergency area.

Claim Sinkings In Naval Fight Off Bear Isle

Germans Deny Loss of Velikie Luki But Russians Insist Entire Hitler Garrison Slain on Refusal to Surrender.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's command acknowledged today German troops had evacuated Elista, capital of the Kalmyck region in the Caucasus, but denied Soviet claims that the triumphant Red armies had won the key Nazi stronghold of Velikie Luki 90 miles from the Latvian frontier.

Nazi headquarters said the garrison at Velikie Luki was holding out stubbornly yesterday, despite fierce Soviet attacks, and added:

"Russian reports that Velikie Luki has been occupied already are therefore not correct."

Russian headquarters declared the entire Nazi garrison was slain when it refused to surrender.

The Germans said Elista was evacuated after the town had been completely destroyed.

Against the black tidings from the eastern front, the German radio sought to bolster home morale with reports of purported Allied losses in a naval battle in the Arctic sea, off Bear island.

An official Nazi account asserted several "enemy" cruisers were damaged, a destroyer sunk and four merchant ships torpedoed in a running sea battle which began Thursday morning when German warships and U-boats intercepted a convoy. One Nazi destroyer was listed as sunk.

The British admiralty announced Thursday that the British warships had contacted German naval forces in northern waters and that the action was continuing. The admiralty said a German cruiser was damaged and forced to retreat and a Nazi destroyer was seen in a sinking condition.

A grim "blackout" on Soviet war news first greeted German radio listeners this morning, and for several hours the populace was deprived of even its usual diet of sugar-coated propaganda served up by Dr. Goebbels' experts.

The German news agency DNB, which customarily opens its daily broadcast with a flood of news, told the German people brusquely:

"There is nothing to report. There is no news available for the time being."

Subsequent broadcasts conceded the loss of Elista as the Red armies swept deeper across the frozen Kalmyck steppes toward the Black sea, but insisted that Velikie Luki still held out. The Germans admitted Thursday that Velikie Luki was virtually surrounded, with the Russians attacking "from all sides."

Soviet dispatches said the fall of the Nazi-held citadel, 260 miles northwest of Moscow, laid open the heart of an important German

SAMPLE: Japan Told Wake Raid Only Hint of 'Things to Come'

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The navy announced today that big four-motored U. S. bombers had raided Japs on Kiska island in the Aleutians for the third consecutive day while other army planes in the South Pacific bombed Japanese headquarters on Guadalcanal island.

(By International News Service)

PEARL HARBOR—Notice had been served on Japan today that the Christmas Eve raid on Wake island was "only a sample of things to come" in the American campaign to drive the invaders back to their home islands.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in New Year day ceremonies awarding decorations to participants in the air attack on the enemy-held Pacific base, disclosed that 75,000 pounds of bombs had been dropped on Japanese military installations on the tiny Pacific base.

"I am glad to have this opportunity of starting the new year by making recognition of the splendidly-executed mission of the army air force," Admiral Nimitz declared. "Without warning on the morning before Christmas the Japanese on Wake island were suddenly presented with 75,000 pounds of aerial bombs, most of which struck and damaged military targets.

"All of our planes attacked from low levels and returned to their homes on schedule with neither planes nor personnel harmed by the enemy artillery which was finally awakened by the visitors.

"This operation epitomizes the complete unity of our Pacific

BALANCE SHEET: BEW Says Axis Nations Remain Powerful

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The board of economic warfare's "balance sheet" of Axis strength and weakness today described Germany as still economically formidable, and Japan definitely stronger in war materials than a year ago but with a major shipping weakness.

The BEW foresaw no economic collapse for the Axis this year but said that sharply increased air attacks on Nazi-controlled Europe can materially weaken Germany's present economic position and stiffened blows against the Jap merchant marine can greatly lessen Japan's chance to make full use of her conquested raw materials.

Summarizing the European Axis position in relation to the Allies, the BEW said that Germany, has passed its peak production; the United Nations have not reached theirs. The United Nations can look forward to rates of production much higher than Germany's in all classifications of implements of war, but, nevertheless, should Germany adopt a defensive policy its present economic base for the support of that type of warfare would be formidable.

"Without greatly increased bombing damage or developments which would force Germany to a higher rate of military activity, as in Russia, there is no reason to expect an economic crack-up in Germany this year," BEW said.

BEW said that Italy is "not an asset to the Axis" but added that collapse of Italy in 1943 from economic causes cannot be expected.

Regarding Japan, BEW said that country has not reached peak production, possesses raw materials for a greatly expanded economy, but has neither the shipping nor the processing capacity to fully utilize the newly acquired raw materials and conquered manpower of southern Asia.

'REEFER' LINK

Soldier Charged With Being Part of Marijuana Ring.

NEW YORK — (INS) A federal grand jury today studied charges linking Private Michael Neely Bryan whom writer Ursula Parrott smuggled out of an army guardhouse in Florida, with a marijuana ring which operated a "reefer canteen" for soldiers in a New York hotel.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Clayton D. Hollinger announced that Bryan, once guitarist in Benny Goodman's band, has been named with four other defendants in complaints charging violation of the marijuana tax law.

Hollinger said the government is moving to have Bryan brought to New York. Miss Parrott, 40, and four times married, will be a government witness against the group, according to Hollinger. She is not a defendant.

BATTLE BLAZE AT SAN PEDRO

Fire Fighting Units Rushed to Terminal Island.

SAN PEDRO, Cal —(INS)— All available fire-fighting equipment in the San Pedro area was rushed to Terminal island early today to combat a spectacular blaze which threatened to destroy a number of fish packing plants and canneries.

Police reported that the general alarm fire had engulfed the California Marine cannery and adjacent packing plants. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Shipping facilities and docks also were threatened.

Camera Takes You Back Over Year

As the New Year swings into stride, the News-Journal camera takes two quick looks back over the photographer's shoulder and brings you in tomorrow's edition two layouts of exceptional pictures recording major news events of last year.

They'll make a valuable edition to your scrapbook of a year that was filled with excitement and historic importance.

You'll meet a number of interesting people in the Sunday edition.

First, there are the six mystery men who advise President Roosevelt. Their names are seldom linked to major news stories, yet they serve as the eyes and ears of the White House and often as its agents. Pictures and story introduce them to you.

Turning homeward again, you'll meet a Mansfield couple who manage to carry on two interesting hobbies under one roof. Husband collects early American squirrel rifles, wife collects unusual china butter dishes.

More pictures and text introduce the members of the Allied high command in North Africa while a numbered diagram gives you 12 possible major developments that 1943 may bring on the warfronts of the world.

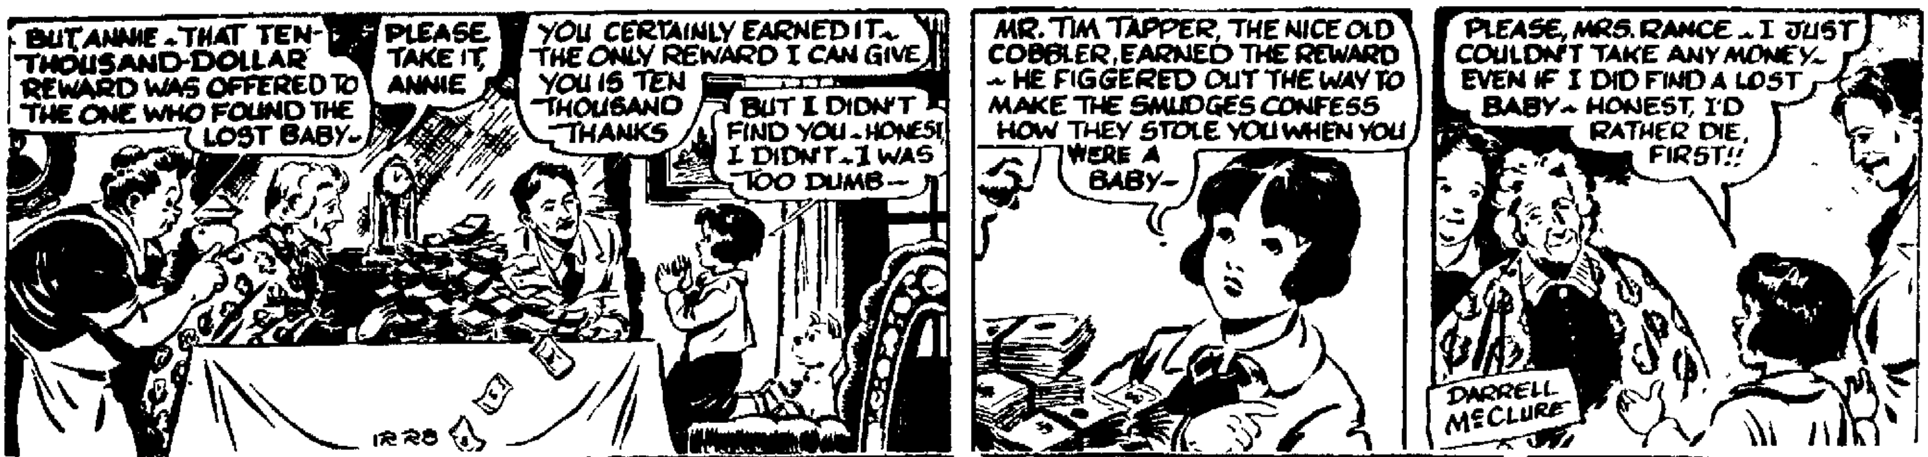
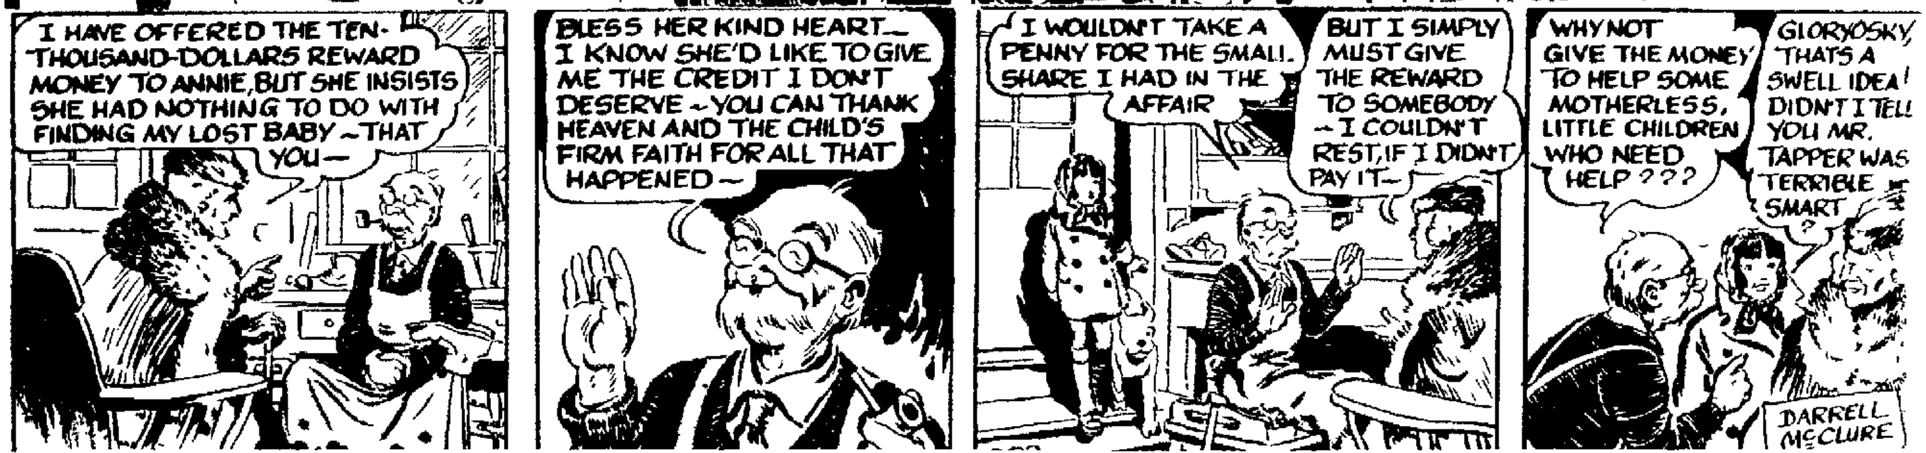
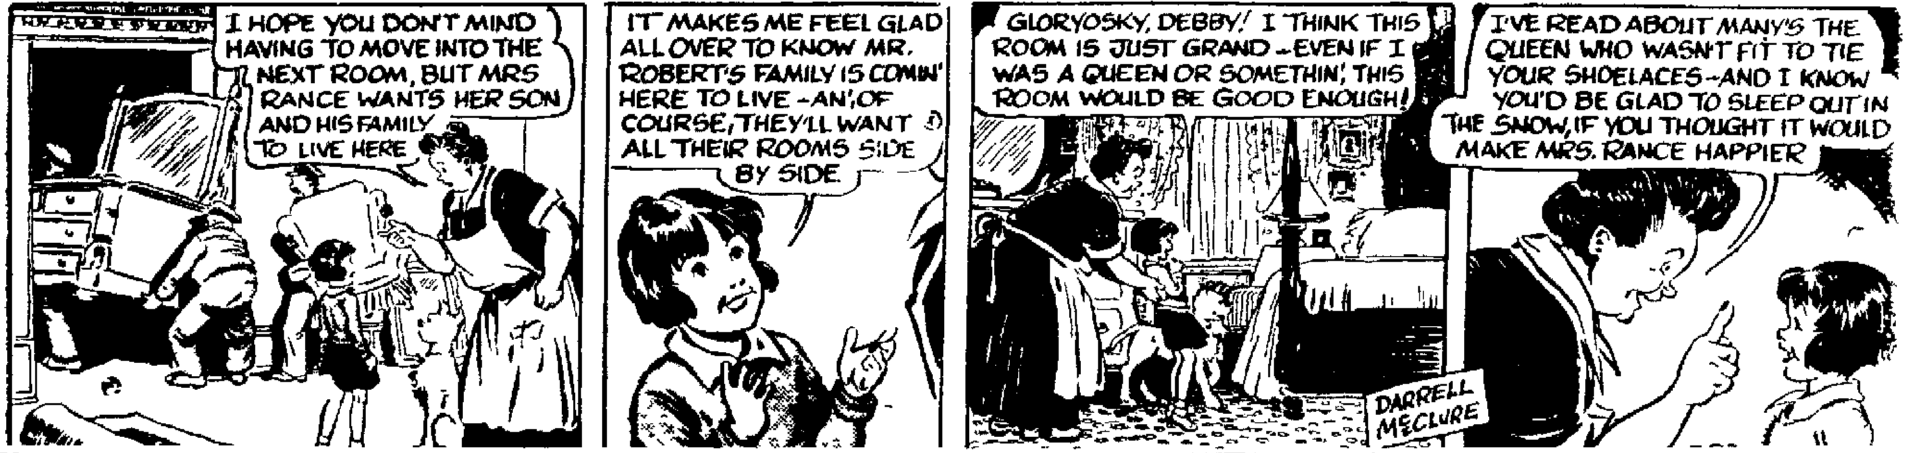
LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY



BUT ANNIE - THAT TEN-THOUSAND-DOLLAR REWARD WAS OFFERED TO THE ONE WHO FOUND THE LOST BABY-
PLEASE TAKE IT, ANNIE
YOU CERTAINLY EARNED IT - THE ONLY REWARD I CAN GIVE YOU IS TEN THOUSAND THANKS
BUT I DIDN'T FIND YOU - HONEST, I DIDN'T - I WAS TOO DUMB -
12-28
MR. TIM TAPPER, THE NICE OLD COBBLER, EARNED THE REWARD - HE FIGGERED OUT THE WAY TO MAKE THE SMUDGES CONFESS HOW THEY STOLE YOU WHEN YOU WERE A BABY-
PLEASE, MRS. RANCE - I JUST COULDN'T TAKE ANY MONEY - EVEN IF I DID FIND A LOST BABY - HONEST, I'D RATHER DIE, FIRST!!
DARRELL McCLURE



I HAVE OFFERED THE TEN-THOUSAND-DOLLARS REWARD MONEY TO ANNIE, BUT SHE INSISTS SHE HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH FINDING MY LOST BABY - THAT YOU -
BLESS HER KIND HEART - I KNOW SHE'D LIKE TO GIVE ME THE CREDIT I DON'T DESERVE - YOU CAN THANK HEAVEN AND THE CHILD'S FIRM FAITH FOR ALL THAT HAPPENED -
I WOULDN'T TAKE A PENNY FOR THE SMALL SHARE I HAD IN THE AFFAIR
BUT I SIMPLY MUST GIVE THE REWARD TO SOMEBODY - I COULDN'T REST, IF I DIDN'T PAY IT-
WHY NOT GIVE THE MONEY TO HELP SOME MOTHERLESS, LITTLE CHILDREN WHO NEED HELP ???
GLORYOSKY, THAT'S A SWELL IDEA! DIDN'T I TELL YOU MR. TAPPER WAS TERRIBLE SMART ?
DARRELL McCLURE



I HOPE YOU DON'T MIND HAVING TO MOVE INTO THE NEXT ROOM, BUT MRS RANCE WANTS HER SON AND HIS FAMILY TO LIVE HERE
IT MAKES ME FEEL GLAD ALL OVER TO KNOW MR. ROBERT'S FAMILY IS COMIN' HERE TO LIVE - AN', OF COURSE, THEY'LL WANT ALL THEIR ROOMS SIDE BY SIDE
GLORYOSKY, DEBBY! I THINK THIS ROOM IS JUST GRAND - EVEN IF I WAS A QUEEN OR SOMETHIN', THIS ROOM WOULD BE GOOD ENOUGH!

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS! MOTHER, YOU ARE TOO GENEROUS - I DON'T KNOW HOW TO THANK YOU - DON'T YOU DARE TRY TO THANK ME -
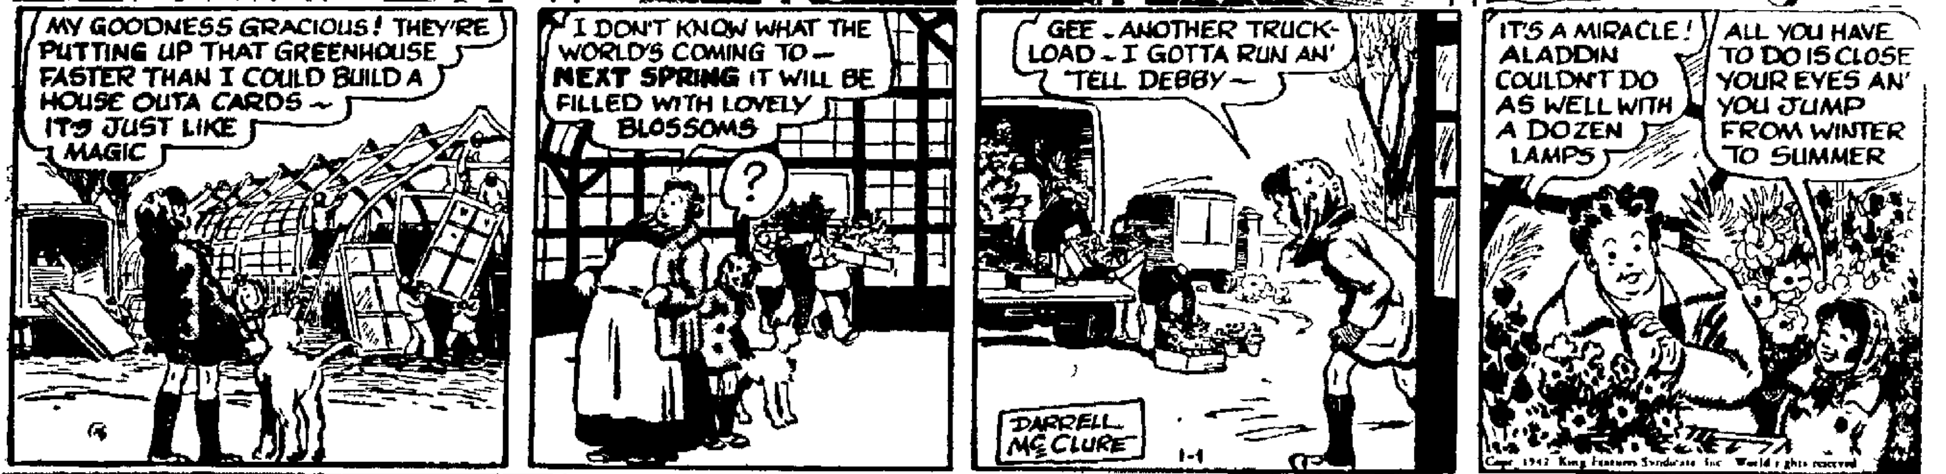
I HAVE TO THANK YOU FOR CONSENTING TO BRING YOUR WIFE AND CHILDREN TO LIVE HERE AND BRIGHTEN UP THIS GLOOMY, OLD HOUSE
THE JOY OF FINDING NOT ONLY A SON, BUT A DAUGHTER AND TWO, LOVELY GRANDCHILDREN MEANS MORE TO ME THAN ALL THE MONEY IN THE WORLD -
HONEST, EVERY TIME I SEE HOW HAPPY MRS. RANCE IS, I WANNA JUMP UP AN' DOWN AN' HOLLER, "HURRAY! HURRAY!" SINCE MR ROBERT WAS FOUND SHE'S LAFFIN' ALL THE TIME
DARRELL McCLURE



MY GOODNESS GRACIOUS! THEY'RE PUTTING UP THAT GREENHOUSE FASTER THAN I COULD BUILD A HOUSE OUTA CARDS - IT'S JUST LIKE MAGIC

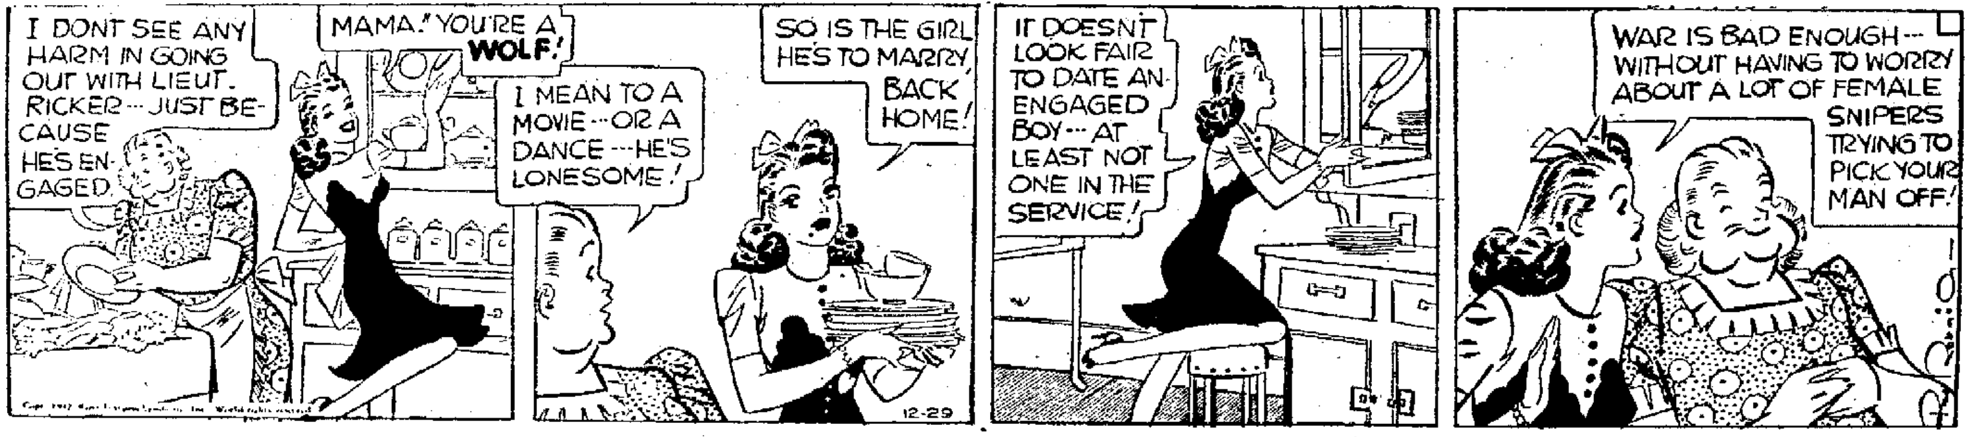
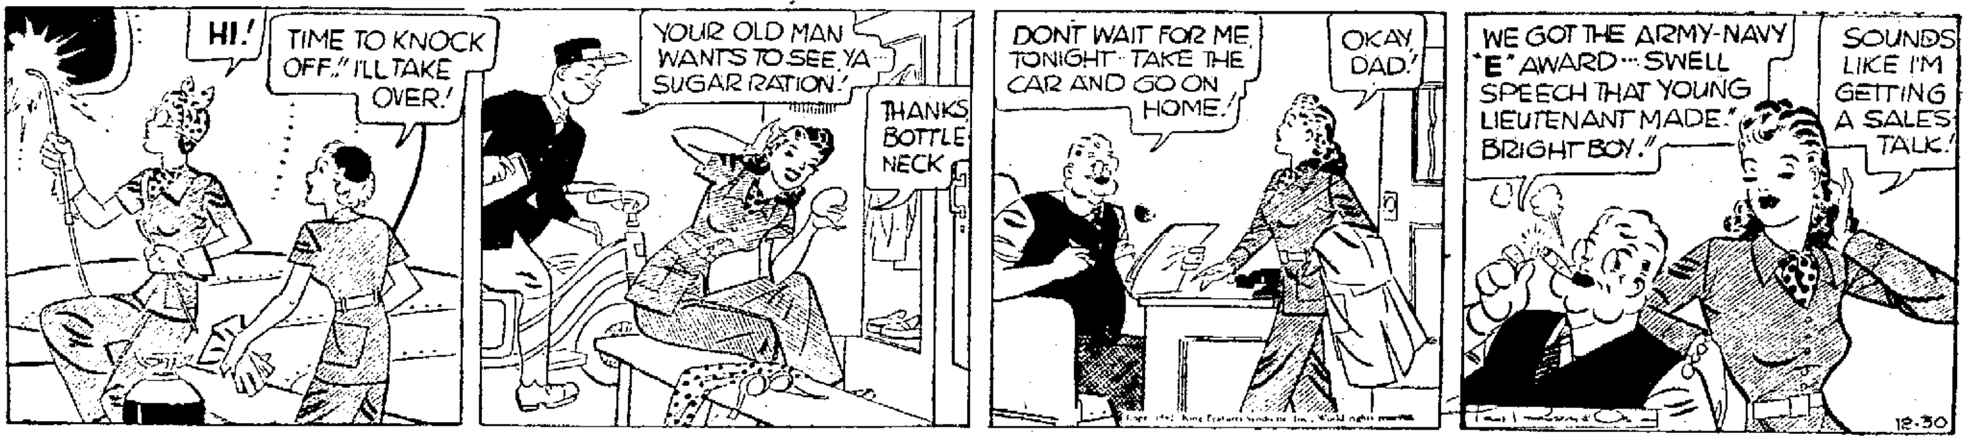
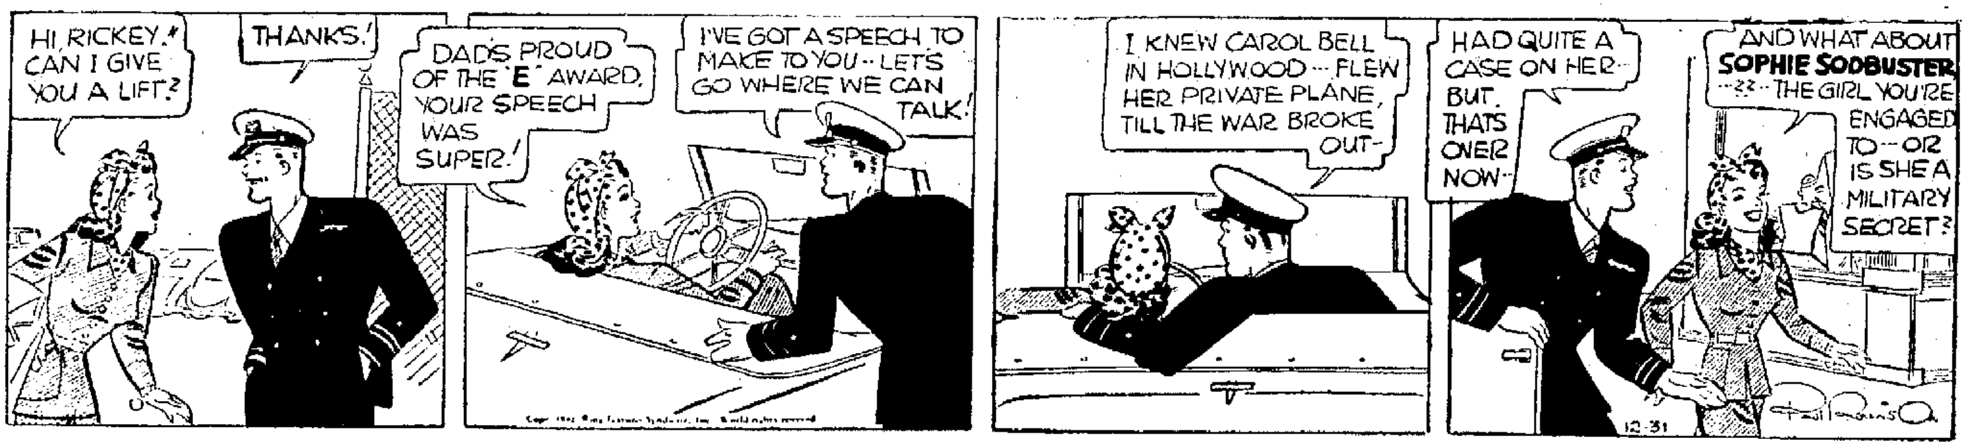
SORRY, RICKEY! IT'S NO DATE ...
WITH BOYS AS HARD TO GET AS GASOLINE, YOU TURN DOWN THAT HANDSOME LIEUTENANT! IT DOESN'T MAKE SENSE!
SOME OTHER GIRL HAS A PRIORITY ON HIM!
YOU MEAN, ENGAGED?
BUT I ALWAYS THOUGHT YOU CONSIDERED A BOY FAIR GAME TILL HE WAS ON HIS WAY UP THE AISLE?
THAT WAS IN THE YEAR-- B.W. ---- BEFORE THE WAR--
12-28



I DON'T SEE ANY HARM IN GOING OUT WITH LIEUT. RICKER -- JUST BECAUSE HE'S ENGAGED.
MAMA! YOU'RE A WOLF!
I MEAN TO A MOVIE -- OR A DANCE -- HE'S LONESOME!
SO IS THE GIRL HE'S TO MARRY, BACK HOME!
12-29
IT DOESN'T LOOK FAIR TO DATE AN ENGAGED BOY -- AT LEAST NOT ONE IN THE SERVICE!
WAR IS BAD ENOUGH -- WITHOUT HAVING TO WORRY ABOUT A LOT OF FEMALE SNIPERS TRYING TO PICK YOUR MAN OFF!



HI!
TIME TO KNOCK OFF.! I'LL TAKE OVER!
YOUR OLD MAN WANTS TO SEE YA -- SUGAR RATION!
THANKS, BOTTLENECK
DON'T WAIT FOR ME TONIGHT-- TAKE THE CAR AND GO ON HOME!
OKAY, DAD!
WE GOT THE ARMY-NAVY "E" AWARD -- SWELL SPEECH THAT YOUNG LIEUTENANT MADE! BRIGHT BOY!
SOUNDS LIKE I'M GETTING A SALES TALK!
12-30



HI, RICKEY! CAN I GIVE YOU A LIFT?
THANKS!
DAD'S PROUD OF THE "E" AWARD, YOUR SPEECH WAS SUPER!
I'VE GOT A SPEECH TO MAKE TO YOU -- LET'S GO WHERE WE CAN TALK!
I KNEW CAROL BELL IN HOLLYWOOD -- FLEW HER PRIVATE PLANE, TILL THE WAR BROKE OUT-
HAD QUITE A CASE ON HER-- BUT, THAT'S OVER NOW-- AND WHAT ABOUT SOPHIE SODBUSTER -- ?? -- THE GIRL YOU'RE ENGAGED TO -- OR IS SHE A MILITARY SECRET?
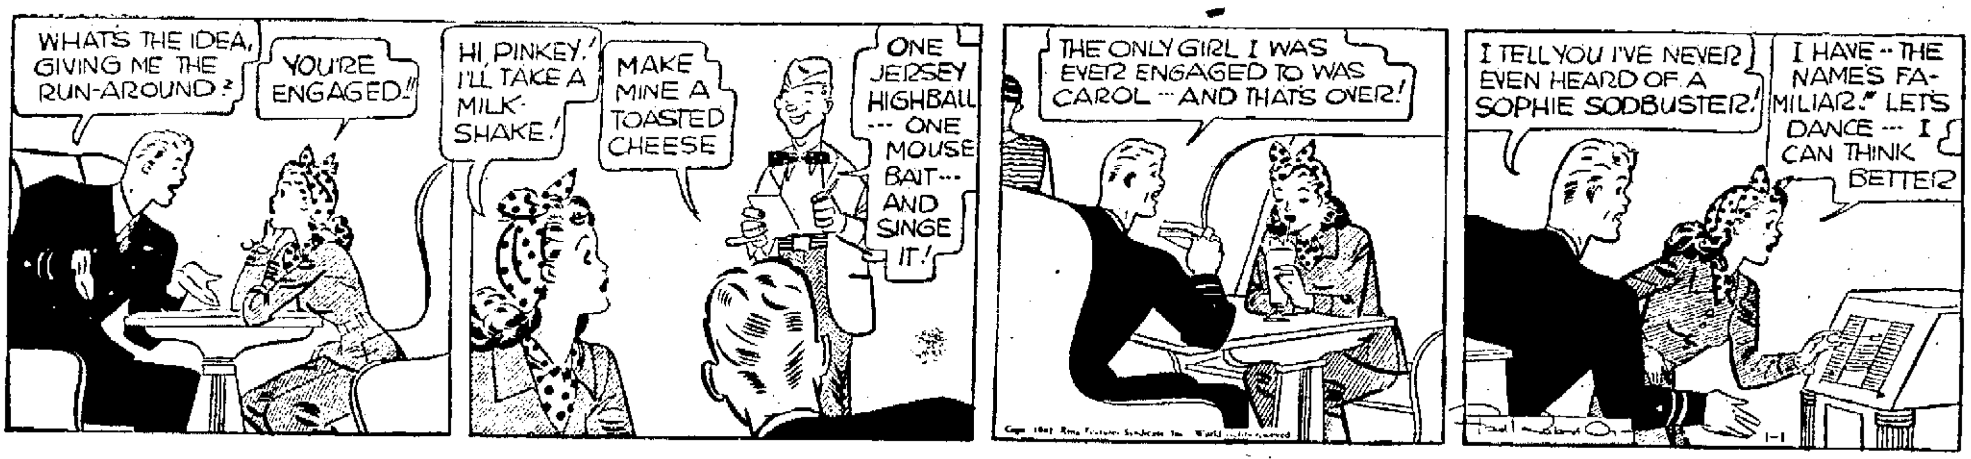
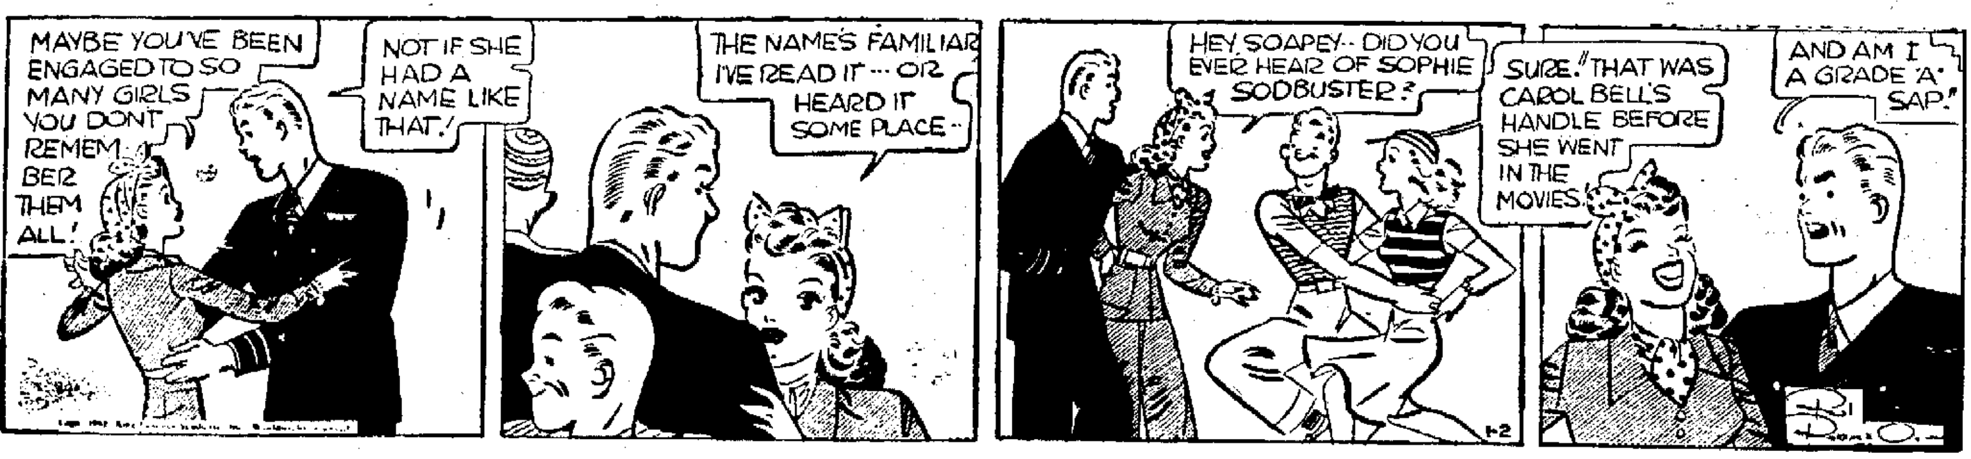
12-31



WHAT'S THE IDEA, GIVING ME THE RUN-AROUND?
YOU'RE ENGAGED!!
HI, PINKEY! I'LL TAKE A MILK-SHAKE!
MAKE MINE A TOASTED CHEESE
ONE JERSEY HIGHBALL --- ONE MOUSE BAIT --- AND SINGE IT!
THE ONLY GIRL I WAS EVER ENGAGED TO WAS CAROL -- AND THAT'S OVER!
I TELL YOU I'VE NEVER EVEN HEARD OF A SOPHIE SODBUSTER!
I HAVE -- THE NAME'S FAMILIAR! LET'S DANCE --- I CAN THINK BETTER
1-1



MAYBE YOU'VE BEEN ENGAGED TO SO MANY GIRLS YOU DON'T REMEMBER THEM ALL!
NOT IF SHE HAD A NAME LIKE THAT!
THE NAME'S FAMILIAR I'VE READ IT --- OR HEARD IT SOME PLACE --
HEY, SOAPEY -- DID YOU EVER HEAR OF SOPHIE SODBUSTER?
SURE! THAT WAS CAROL BELL'S HANDLE BEFORE SHE WENT IN THE MOVIES!
AND AM I A GRADE 'A' SAP!

The feud between Irving Berlin and Sgt. Ezra Stone is the talk of "This Is the Army" . . . Joyce Matthews Berle is ailing in her Savoy-Plaza suite.

Sonia Stokowski, the maestro's daughter, will waltz down the aisle with Capt. Ray Shelby of the parachute troops . . . At the urging of women's groups, a woman will be given an important OPA post soon.

Some Hollywoodites take the Paulette Goddard - Burgess Meredith romance so seriously they're rumoring a secret marriage . . . Alexander Woollcott is ailing again.

Bonnie Edwards' sotto voice heart is a famous former diplomat . . . The Royal Casino, where Peggy Fears starred, has folded. Couldn't even hold out until New Year eve.

The Rainbow Room almost had a new tenant, until the Rockefellers learned that a girlie show was being contemplated. Negotiations were promptly cancelled.

Choo-Choo Johnson, the model, is out of the cast of "Cover Girl" because she posed for a magazine that didn't have a tieup with the film . . . Budd ("What Makes Sammy Run?") Shulberg's new novel puts the whammy on a lot of very familiar literary New Yorkers.

The Lyn Murrays (he's the musical arranger) are knitting tiny garments . . . Joan Smith, the glamor girl who quit posing for a job in a defense plant, has been awarded the Navy "E". Right after she received her prize, she was hit on the head by a swinging crane.

Spivy and magician Fred Keating have postponed their wedding because of her father's illness . . . Nedenia Hutton, the beautiful heiress, and John Talbot, of her set, don't care who knows they care.

The Bing Crosby - Bob Hope short, "Don't Look Now," will be billed over feature-length grade A pictures in most theaters throughout the country.

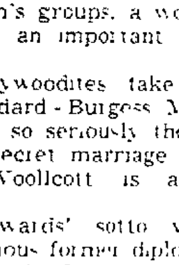
Leon Turrou, former ace G-man who wrote "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," had a narrow escape from death a few days ago when the car in which he was riding was hit by a 14-ton truck near Red Bank, N. J., and was overturned three times.

John Frank has lifted with the other Revuers. They'll now function as a quartet.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Alexander Granach is a barrel-chested little man with a broad head and bright eyes and militant moustachios. He is an actor, and you'll see him as various personages but now you see him chiefly as a wily Gestapo agent — the sort who hounds Michele Morgan in "Joan of Paris" or Anna Lee in "Unconquered."



Coons

The latter villainy is engaging his time at present, and he is well on the way to becoming a very cordially hated character.

After seeing him as the silent Gestapo cop of "Joan of Paris," the polite family-man type of cop whose shoes creaked constantly, and then witnessing his bright-eyed skullduggery in "Unconquered," I expected to find Granach a gentleman of rollicking elfin attributes—elfin in a huge way, of course. Instead he turns out to be an "artist," a man of ideas about the theater with a quite serious approach to everything. This is disappointing.

Especially so because there were charming tales told of him, how as a tumbler and bear-trainer with a traveling circus he once impressed the great Max Reinhardt by soothing his growling bears with Shakespearean speeches delivered in rolling German gutturals, how he was involved in a Czar [illegible] bit of espionage work in the last war with a Polish [illegible] and a Russian colonel among the dramatis personae.

Granach will own up to none of this. His air of mystery is probably due to the fact that, like most people, he is writing a book. He will tell you of his youth as a baker's boy in Poland, of his departure from Germany at Hitler's accession to power, of his subsequent retreats to Austria, to the Soviet Union, to Switzerland, to America.

His fame as an actor on the continent meant nothing here except that William Dieterle, whom he had known abroad, found him in New York and enlisted him for an all-refugee cast of "William Tell." He knew no English but he knew some actor's tricks. He knew, for instance, that Lubitsch was looking for Russian types for "Ninotchka"—this was 1938—so he played his Swiss peasant's role in the Russian make-up. Lubitsch fell for it, and Granach thus made his first movie.

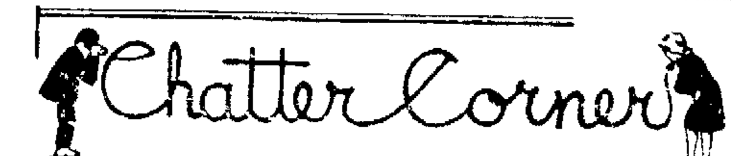
When they interviewed him for the Gestapoman in "Joan of Paris" he showed up looking the meek, family-man type he understood was wanted. "This man has a cruel cunning streak in him," he was told, and immediately, before their eyes, Granach developed a bristling wily front which copped the role. He was perfect, without a line of dialogue, so they said he was great for "silent" roles. Now he is playing Gestapo with talk to refute his critics.

All of which is very well, but still a disappointment after the impression made by his stout-pixie exterior.



Charles William Wood of Springfield, Ill., surprising his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Varney, 141 Wolfe avenue, by coming from radio code school at Altoona, Pa., to spend his [illegible] day furlough with them . . . Miss Louise Scott of Pittsburgh, [illegible] ing the week-end with friends in Mansfield. She formerly resided here . . . Chet Beer elated over winning first place in the 50-bird event at the Muzzle Loaders trap shoot. Earl Cramer, Crestline, equally pleased over second place and Hollis P[illegible] [illegible] all were consecutive scores.

Mrs. [illegible] composer [illegible] ing her hostess duties at the USO club at 6 p. m. yesterday after not having had a single serviceman appear during the afternoon . . . THREE KILLED AT TWO TRAINS HIT HEAD-ON Four Injured, Traffic Tied Up 14 Hours by Wreck at New Philadelphia.

(By Associated Press)

NEW PHILADELPHIA — A head-on collision of two freight trains in a deep cut killed three engineers, injured four other crewmen and tied up flood-detoured traffic about 14 hours at nearby Zoarville.

Three locomotives and seven cars were derailed as the Pennsylvania railroad trains, routed over Wheeling and Lake Erie tracks because of high water at Mingo Junction, crashed before dawn yesterday.

Killed were: A. L. Snyder, 50, of Canton, and W. C. Briceland, 60, of Massillon, both Pennsylvania engineers, and B. M. Grimsley, 47, of Justus, W. and L. E. engineer piloting the eastbound train.

Injured were: William Keith, 46, of Navarre, W. and L. E. engineer acting as pilot on the westbound train, Bennett Gardner, 42, V. D. Adair and Thomas Newman, all firemen of Canton.

Briceland and Grimsley were in the lead engine of the eastbound doubleheader with Gardner when the crash occurred. C. A. Green, Canton engineer, and George Holcomb, Canton fireman, were in the second locomotive and were shaken but uninjured. Both engines and six cars left the rails.

The locomotive and one car of the other train were derailed and Snyder's body was pinned in the wreckage for several hours as repair crews battled a fire that broke out and hampered operations.

Snyder was credited with saving the lives of three crewmen at the cost of his own.

George Patterson, who cared for the injured at his home near the wreck scene until ambulances arrived, quoted Keith as saying Snyder pushed Keith and two others out of the cab when he saw the train would collide.

"He undoubtedly saved our lives and gave up his own to do it," Patterson said Keith related.

MEET TUESDAY

School Heads to Map Plans For Fuel Registration.

Superintendents of rural schools in Richland county, County Superintendent Boyd Robinson and ration board officials will meet Tuesday to discuss plans for the second fuel oil registration in rural areas, it was announced today.

While rural consumers were urged to await further instruction concerning time and places for the registration, emergency rations may be obtained at the ration board, Chief Clerk Nelson Neff said. Despite the fact that three days were set aside for registration of Mansfield consumers, the registration remains open.

Salesmen who have made applications for increased gasoline supplies, under the recent revised ruling, and who have not been advised that their petitions were denied may receive "C" books by calling at the ration board, Neff said.

HEART ATTACK ENDS IN DEATH

ASHLAND — Mrs. T. V. Simanton, 71, died Friday afternoon at her home, 316 Cottage street, following a heart attack. Born Apr. 4, 1868, in Clear Creek township, she was a life-long resident of this county and an active member of the Methodist church.

Surviving are her husband, two step-daughters, Martha Simanton at home, Mrs. Frances Pannebaker, Nashville, Tenn.; a step-son, R. J. Simanton of Tallapoosa, Ga.; two brothers, Ralph and Tully Emmens, Ashland.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 3:30 p. m. at the home by Rev. F. L. Hicks, pastor of the Methodist church, and assisted by Rev. P. P. Arnspach. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

SALES BOOSTED

Non-Durable Goods Purchases Increase November Business.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Buying of non-durable goods boosted November business in Ohio's independent retail stores 3 per cent ahead of the total for November 1941, but the aggregate was 7 per cent below the figure for last October.

Ohio State university's bureau of business research reported business for the first 11 months of 1942 about equal to that for the corresponding 1941 period.

BANGHART TO GO TO ALCATRAZ

Fellow Prisoners Boo Touhy as He Returns to Cell At Stateville.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — Basil ("The Owl") Banghart, tough guy of the Roger ("Terrible") Touhy gang, is to be sent to the federal prison at Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay, it was disclosed today.

Banghart was arrested by FBI agents last Tuesday in a round-up of six convicts who fled the Stateville, Ill., penitentiary with Touhy Oct. 9. Two of the escaped felons were shot.

Touhy, Edward Darlak and William Stewart were returned from federal custody to Stateville authorities to begin 21-day solitary confinement terms, but Banghart was turned over to U. S. Marshal William H. McDonnell.

Banghart was lodged in Cook county jail to await a trip to Alcatraz in two or three days. He is under a federal sentence of 36 years for participation in a $100,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C.

Boos and jeers from other prisoners greet Touhy as he was led back to the Stateville prison. Stateville inmates had read how the supposedly hard-boiled Touhy was captured without the firing of a shot in a Chicago apartment and how he was clad in red silk pajamas.

Despite the 21-day punishment term in solitary confinement, Touhy is scheduled to appear in federal court in Chicago Tuesday for a habeas corpus hearing.

The suit was begun by Touhy's niece Eleanor Touhy, in what many speculated was an attempt to re-open the 1935 John "Jake the Barber" Factor kidnaping for which Touhy and original members of the gang were sent to jail for 99 years. Touhy has maintained innocence in the case.

THROWN FROM CAR BY CRASH

Ashland Woman, Husband And Baby In Accident.

ASHLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Kreis, Ashland R. D. 3, and their month old baby escaped serious injury when their car collided with an automobile driven by George Dever, Ashland R. D. 1, at the intersection of Union and Fourth street early Friday morning.

Mrs. Kreis, thrown out of the car, was taken to Samaritan hospital. She suffered a leg injury. Neither the baby nor the two drivers were hurt. Kries told city policeman that he failed to see Dever's car as his approached the intersection.

PRODUCTION RECORDS SET IN 1942 DESPITE DOUBLE SHORTAGE

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Despite shortages of materials and manpower, many new production records were set by industry in 1942, the Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland observed today in its monthly business review.

New construction in the fourth federal reserve district of Ohio, eastern Kentucky, western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia panhandle was the highest in history. Machine tool production, over one-third of which is concentrated in this district, almost doubled the 1941 output, while steel production in the first eleven months of the year was four per cent above the previous all-time record of the year before.

Lake shipments of iron ore exceeded 92,000,000 tons, establishing a new record 15 per cent above that of 1941. Rubber companies, in part as a result of war material production, also reported all-time sales records despite tire rationing and severe limitations on other civilian business.

These production records have been responsible for a general population movement from the farms and rural areas to war production centers, the federal reserve report indicates.

Population estimates based on issuance of sugar ration books are cited to show a 3.4 decrease in population of rural Ohio counties between April 1, 1940 and May 1, 1942, while urban counties in the state increased 3.4 per cent.

Ohio's net change was an increase of .8 per cent.

Up and Down THE STREET

Ways and means of operating gun clubs despite the fact that the coming year is expected to bring further restrictions in the use of ammunition, if any is available, is the concern of many Mansfield sportsman. The Mansfield Muzzle-Loaders club will discuss the question at their organization meeting tentatively scheduled for this coming week. Trap shoots which have been a big factor in financing the club may have to be suspended for the duration, or at least, held less frequently.

And then there was the guy who had been celebrating New Year, and passed a car that he thought belonged to a friend parked downtown, and decided it would be a good idea to stick a note saying Happy New Year under the steering wheel. So he wrote a note, but there wasn't room on the card, all the paper he could find, to say "Happy New Year" so he abbreviated it to just "H.N.Y." An hour or so later he passed the same spot, saw the car still there and decided to see if the note was still where he'd put it. It was. So the guy looked at it, and couldn't figure out what he'd meant by "H.N.Y."

Of all the time-honored New Year day customs followed in Mansfield yesterday none was more prevalent than the making of a pair of pillow cases as a medium of inducing good luck for the coming year. Many women devoted their leisure time during the day to hemming pillow-tubing so as to have a brand new pair of cases to inaugurate the first day of the new year. Dozens of housewives bought tubing before the stores closed New Year eve and some of the year-after-year customers not reaching the tubing counter much before closing time were greeted by their regular clerks with "Well, we were just beginning to wonder if you weren't going to get in for your pillow cases"!

TALK LOTTERY AS MEANS OF RAISING FUNDS

Legislators Declare Some Plan Needed as Curb On Inflation.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Two angles today loomed as possibilities for receiving major attention in the consideration of tax legislation by the 78th congress which convenes next Wednesday.

One is the enactment of the pay-as-you-go system of tax collection.

The other is the raising of revenue by a government-operated "everybody wins" lottery.

Sen. Elmer Thomas (D.), Okla., said it is apparent that the government can't collect enough taxes, particularly during war times, and sell enough bonds and stamps to raise the required revenue.

"In order to avoid the possibility of inflation it is necessary to devise some plan to get money from those who have it, such as compulsory savings and the pay-as-you-go system of tax collection," he said.

Establishment of a government lottery would encounter stiff opposition from the "hard shell" opponents of gambling—no matter how sacred the cause, Sen. Ralph O. Brewster (R.), Maine, predicted.

Brewster said that there is growing sentiment in many sections for the operation of an "everybody wins" lottery which would avoid any semblance of a "racket" or provide a means of individual enrichment.

Considerable support was given early in the 77th congress to such a lottery plan proposed by Thomas. The Oklahoman, however, did not push his plan when it received opposition from certain quarters in the treasury department.

Recently, however, talk in congressional circles has learned more and more favorably to the possibility of such a plan for the raising of war-needed revenues by the government.

Budget Problem Faces Assembly Opening Monday.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — All was in readiness today for convening Monday of Ohio's first war-time legislature in 25 years.

Overwhelmingly Republican in its membership, with the GOP having 111 of the 136 seats in the house and all but five of the 33 seats in the senate, the 95th general assembly will confine itself generally to wartime problems and strive for that perennial goal, a "short session."

Principal problem before the legislators will be the biennial budget, complicated by wartime consideration. Decreasing receiptst are anticipated due to curtailment of civilian commodities and travel, while expenditures will be increased, partly by a salary increase which must be granted to state workers if they are to remain on their jobs.

The state will start the new biennium with a surplus of about $33,000,000 in the treasury, but sales tax and gasoline tax revenues in 1943 and for the duration are expected to decrease.

FLOOD DRIVES OUT 30,000

Damage Feared Near Three And Half Million as Crest Nears Portsmouth.

Pleasant, was safe behind an $11,000,000 72-foot wall completed last month. The river was expected to crest at 61.5 feet, 11 above flood stage.

At Proctorville, O., however, 400 of the town's 950 residents were evacuated, some to Huntington. Hundreds of homes were flooded at Ashland and Catlettsburg, Ky., and water ran seven feet deep in the Catlettsburg business district.

Semi-paralysis of production spread southward while thousands more folk in Ohio and Kentucky scurried to higher ground.

Steel mills banked fires or reduced output in Portsmouth, Ashland and Newport, Ky., as the water crept higher. Bales of tobacco were hurriedly removed from a warehouse at Maysville, Ky.

Farmers in Kentucky also suffered heavily. Six hundred acres of hemp worth $75,000 were lost or seriously threatened in Henderson county.

At Cincinnati the water was three feet past the 52-foot flood level and a peak of 62 was due tomorrow. At Louisville, Ky., it was two feet below the 28 foot flood level, with a top of 38 sighted.

The Red Cross began a survey of the entire flood-stricken area to determine what extra relief measures were necessary and what materials priorities were needed for rebuilding.

In Washington Director James M. Landis of the Office of Civilian Defense said OCD volunteers had met "superbly" a "real test in large-scale disaster."

The plight of small Ohio communities between here and Cincinnati aroused the concern of the Ohio State Guard.

Adjt. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast sent a second company of guardsmen into Manchester to help move residents of lowlands. Col. Sam Richmond said the "situation is bad at Manchester and later it might be worse at New Richmond."

The state highway department reported 250 families evacuated from the Chilo area and others at New Richmond, Moscow and Point Pleasant.

U. S. route 52 was closed between Cincinnati and Chilo and U. S. 50 at Elizabethtown.

The Scioto river which meets the Ohio river at Portsmouth, was falling as far south as Piketon, but route 23 still was closed from Lucasville to Portsmouth.

Pittsburgh Cleans Up Flood Debris

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Hose lines, shovels, brooms and buckets were being used by industrious residents today to mop up the last of the debris left by Wednesday's flood in the Pittsburgh areas as the receding waters disclosed the body of another victim—the fourth in western Pennsylvania.

Latest victim of the rampaging rivers was Thomas D. Carlisle, 16, of Baldwin township, whose body was found on a ledge along Beck's Run, above the South Pittsburgh waterworks. He left home Wednesday to have a look at the flood scene.

Upstream from Point Pleasant, the river city of Wheeling prepared for its cleanup job, as unofficial reports indicated damage in excess of a million dollars. Seven war plants were closed in the Wheeling area, and nearly 10,000 persons were made temporarily homeless by the raging waters which went 16 feet over flood stage.

Six Dead In Western Oregon Flood

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Flood waters that caused at least six deaths and an estimated $5,000,000 damage in western Oregon surged down the Willamette valley toward new crests today as rescue workers evacuated families from the lowland regions in their path.

The Portland Weather bureau reported the crest had passed Eugene, center of the hardest-hit area, but warned that serious floods are in store for the lower Willamette valley.

Automobile traffic was at a virtual standstill. State police reported that 2,600 logs had broken loose from lumber mills at Salem and Albany and it was feared they would take out additional bridges unless a jam occurred to break their headlong rush. Bus and train service was being resumed after temporary delays organize relations among nations that forces of barbarism can never again break loose, third, to cooperate to the end that mankind may enjoy in peace and in freedom the unprecedented blessings which divine providence through the progress of civilization has put within our reach."

When the prepared statement had been read, Mr. Roosevelt was asked to amplify it. He permitted his extemporaneous comments to be quoted directly:

"There is one thing which at the present time stands out as the most important war objective, and that is to maintain peace so that all of us in going through this war, including the men on the fighting fronts and on the seas, will not have to go through a world cataclysm again—that they will have some reasonable assurance that their children won't have to go through it again.

"Almost all the other things we hope to get out of the war are more or less dependent on the maintenance of peace—all kinds of planning for the future, economic and social, and so forth and so on. . . ."

Clevelanders Shying Away From Purchase of Horsemeat

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND Mrs. American Housewife and her family can take their horsemeat or leave it alone, and the latter was what they were doing here today in large numbers, a survey of meat packers and retail butchers has revealed.

Carcasses weighing about 22,000 pounds, which Cleveland meat wholesalers unloosed on a surprised "human consumption" market this week, have been nicked by newspaper reporters who pronounced the "horseburgers" tender and tasty, as cameras snapped the scene for posterity.

But 19 out of 20 housewives (no doubt convinced that reporters are a queer lot, anyway) are opposed to buying steaks from the carcasses of old Dobbin, the old gray mare or any other of their long-faced relatives, according to F. J. Beckley, a retail butcher.

"One customer said he wasn't going to eat anymore beef until the war is over for fear he gets a piece of horse," Beckley declared.

"I wouldn't have horsemeat in my kitchen for anything," snapped Mrs. J. W. Bevington, when approached for the housewife's reaction.

Another angle was injected into the subject by a customer of William H. Boyer, market manager, with which probably many sentimentally - inclined animal lovers will agree. This customer said, "Most of us have been horse-back riding some time in our lives and we can't stand the idea of eating horse flesh."

Human use of horsemeat isn't new by any means, and there are many persons in the world who would consider it, or almost any sort of meat even vaguely edible, a gift from heaven. Even members of the United States armed forces serving in the South Pacific during the opening days of the war found it necessary to eat their horses and mules, or starve. This is an alternative which usually is not decided upon a mere preferential basis

A long list of Cleveland butchers was contacted by International News Service and the answers varied from "we might possibly use horse meat if the situation becomes critical enough," to the emphatic, "I wouldn't sell horsemeat if my customers were starving." One market said that their customers seemed to think they wouldn't like it, and the patrons of William Boryk flatly stated that they would rather go without than eat horsemeat.

In spite of these initial avowals of displeasure at the thought of using horse flesh, the American public will be forced more and more to resort to substitutes as the meat situation grows severe, packers pointed out.

Largest factor operating against the universal acceptance of horsemeat is the thing which determines the food choice of practically every member of homo sapiens species—the factor of food prejudice. When the now widespread prejudice against it is lessened by familiarity, horsemeat will be as much a part of the victory festive board as the previously plentiful beef was before the war, the packers predicted.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be sure to know where you are going before you start.

An improvement in their health may annoy some of the folks who are now fussing about dietary restrictions.

With $2,400 a year fixed as top pay for farm hands, it's quite likely that some farmers will probably think that the final cipher got there by mistake.

Mansfield's Industrial Outlook

WITHOUT over-emphasizing prospects for Mansfield during 1943, it seems fair to assume that this will be a year of steady increase in local industrial employment, with resultant benefits along many lines.

The industrial forecast which appeared in the year-end issue of the News-Journal was in optimistic tone, apparently justified by knowledge of present conditions and the outlook for enlargement of war production throughout the year.

Estimates, based on a careful and intentionally conservative survey, indicate that requirements for employes in local industries will gradually creep upward from the present level of approximately 10,000 to more than 12,000 by April 1; around 13,500 by July 1; probably reaching to the city's highest industrial employment level of 14,635 by the end of the year.

While such increases, if gradually attained, would not result in the serious housing problems that have come about in some of the cities which were suddenly projected into extensive war production without advance preparations, requirement for additional suitable living quarters commensurate with the estimated increase in industrial employment would test Mansfield's housing facilities to the utmost, as a recent survey reveals fewer than 200 dwellings or apartment house units available for rent in the city.

Present restrictions on building make it impossible to follow Mansfield's long-time practice of adding gradually to the number of homes and apartments in city and suburbs, and it may well be hoped that any present or prospective need will not result in a wave of building houses of questionable, or definitely inferior quality, to meet what may be a temporary demand, as is occurring in some parts of the country.

Mansfield's progress thus far, as an enviably substantial city, and a desirable community in which to live, has resulted from a consistently maintained policy of sometimes slow but always steady advancement, and, in all probability, when the war is over and the time comes for readjustment to peace conditions, the advantages of such sound procedure will be more fully realized.

Lower Interest On War Costs

THIS WAR is far more costly than any previous one, but it is not the interest rates on war loans that make it so. It is the cost of war equipment and operation. Airplanes, tanks and other forms of mechanized fighting are less expensive in terms of human life, but far more so when measured in dollars. From present estimates and appropriations already voted by congress, and the current outlay for subsidies and loans to allies that may never be repaid, it begins to look as if the war may set Uncle Sam back as much as $300,000,000,000. It will take a long time to wipe out that debt.

There are, however, ameliorating factors. One is the lower interest rate paid by the government on war loans. War bonds have fallen from 3.5 and 4.75 per cent interest in the last World war, to less than 3 per cent now. Secretary Morgenthau hopes to do most of the financing at 2.5 per cent. This will mean, in the long run, a saving of many billions.

Obviously the more war bonds people buy now, while they are making big money, the less they and their children will have to pay later.

More Attention To Family Budget

"NO GREAT LOSS without some small gain," the old folks used to put it. And the queer part of it is that so often the character of the small advantageous by-product is so completely unforeseen. No one, for instance, contemplating war, would have thought it would lead to better household accounting. But it does.

The necessity for buying bonds—which is really a form of saving—and the imminence of war income taxes are causing housewives who thought budgets all nonsense to seek budgetting help from banks, newspapers and magazines in great numbers. The heedless girls and boys who so gaily spent a week's earnings on a single date—the girls for clothes and cosmetics, the boys for food and shows—are now taking thought for the tax payments of the months to come. A little foresight isn't hurting them, either, and the "dates" are just as enjoyable as ever.

Haves and Have Nots

THE AXIS POWERS like to speak of themselves as the Have-Nots. Probably they think it justifies their despoiling of their neighbors. They are Have-Nots indeed, but not in the sense in which they ordinarily think of the term. The Eighth Avenue Temple of Brooklyn says truly:

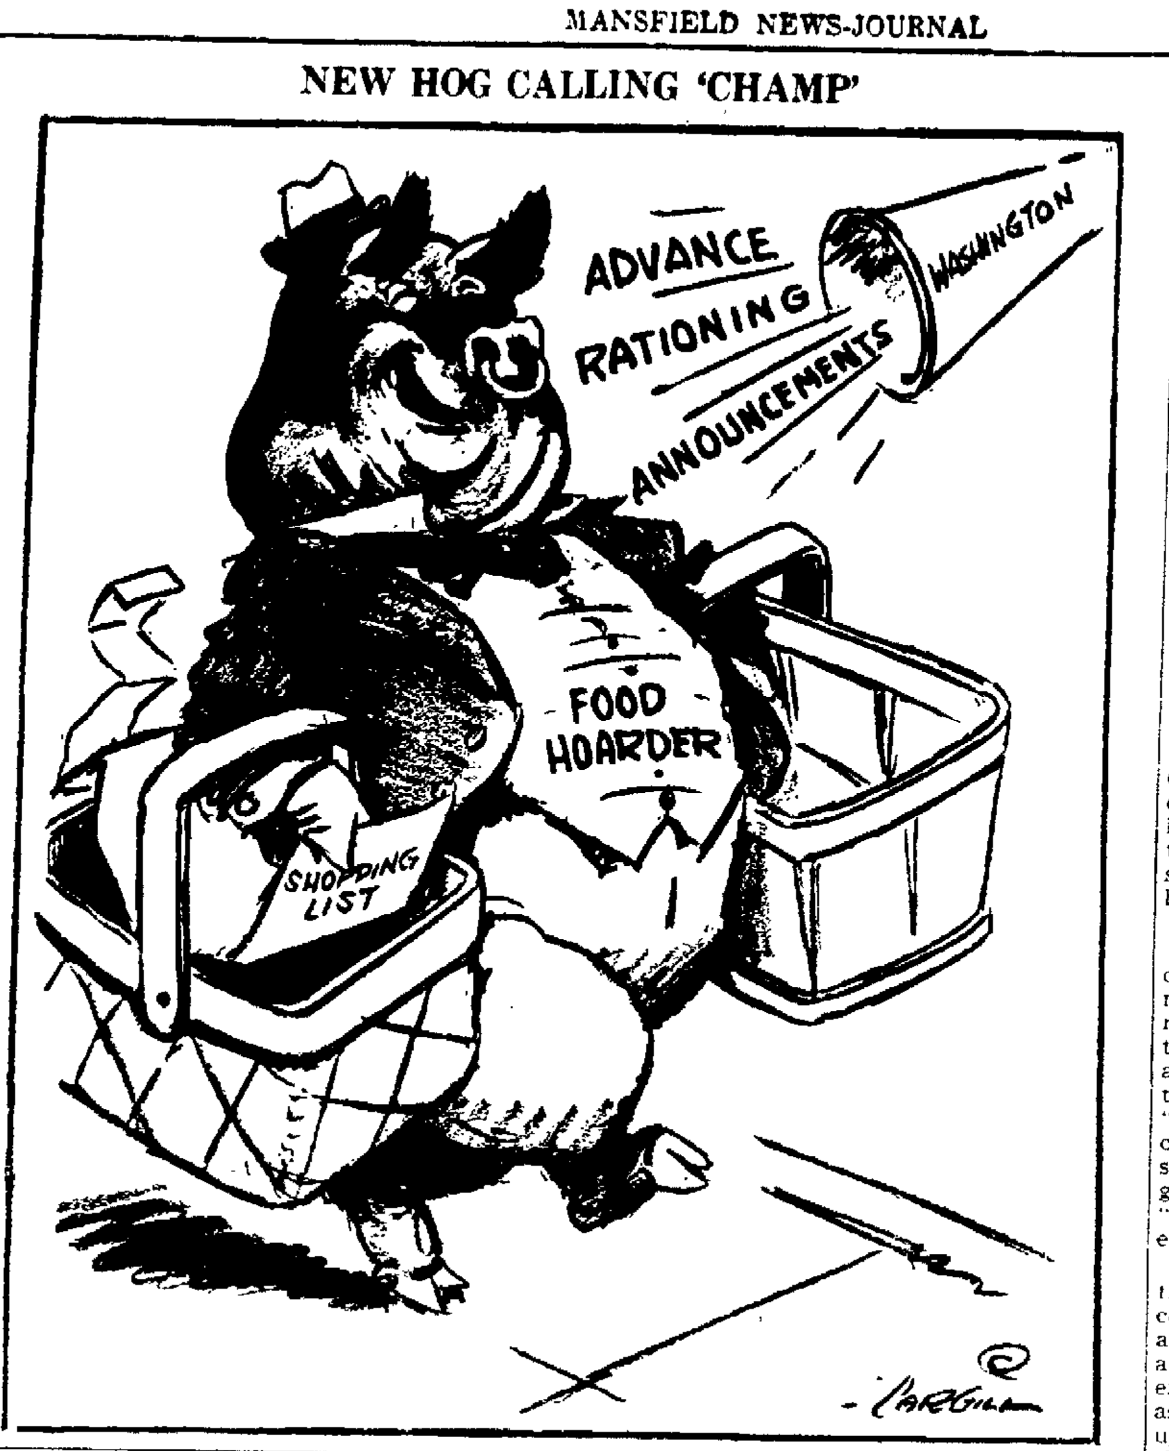
"We have free speech. They have not. We have free thinking. They have not. We have free teaching. They have not. We have respect for religion. They have not. We have reverence for human dignity. They have not. We have practices described as justice, charity, mercy. They have not. They have only the highest interests of the state. And because we, the Haves, have all these things, we have something for which to fight, today, now, right here."

Good 'Cow-Hands' Hard To Find

THE WAR is doing worse things, in the west, than interfering with the dude ranching business. On one ranch alone, says a Kansas City report, there are 5,000 calves unbranded for lack of cow-hands. The cattle must be cared for to keep up the meat supply. Ranchers are working 14 hours a day seven days a week, and still can't swing the job.

It is unfortunate that so many cow-hands have been called to the army. It isn't merely a matter of counting the "hands" but rather the quality of the cowboys. They are hard to replace. "I don't understand why," says the head of a big stockgrowers association, "but a country boy can go to the city and make good in a reasonable time, while a boy from the city, as a rule, won't succeed on a ranch or farm." That's an interesting statement to think about.

NEW HOG CALLING 'CHAMP'



FDR 'Award' Viewed as Bouquet

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—For a would-be kick in the pants to land as a fine compliment may seem paradoxical. Nevetheless, President Roosevelt's recent swipe in the direction of the seat of John O'Donnell's journalistic trousers generally is regarded by John's professional colleagues in the Washington newspaper corps as having been highly flattering. It's the consensus of opinion at the National Press club that it ought to win the lad a substantial pay boost.

The story's been copiously broadcast to capital scribes, but I doubt that the miscellaneous public senses the full beauty of it. A reporter or editor is the chap to analyze it fully understandingly.

It's necessary to repeat a bit to rub in the idea thoroughly.

John O'Donnell's chief Washington correspondent of a national news service.

For a long time he's regularly attended what are known as White House press conferences. He's been prominent in the bunch, too. From the president on down, all hands know him.

One of his associates for years has been another of the same gang, George Durno.

George, being eligible now, has been mustered into the military service and at present is an army captain in the Australian area.

What Started It.

John received a letter from him as a friend of a generation's standing. He also got a kind of a twin letter from Jack Turkott, another American newspaperman in the same outfit. They were josh letters. No censor interfered with 'em. There was no reason for any censor to do so.

They struck John O'Donnell as good copy and he played extracts from 'em accordingly.

Somehow, upon their appearance in print, the frivolity of 'em angered F.D.R.

As his notion of a reward, he sent a German iron cross to Br'er O'Donnell. He didn't mean it as a reward, either. The iron cross for years has been recognized as the highest recognition of German valor on the battlefield.

That cross unmistakably was intended as an expression of the White House judgment that John was plugging for the Germans.

How F.D.R. got the gewgaw isn't explained, but it's immaterial, considering how long and intimately he's been associated with internationalism. He doubtless has oodles of such tags available.

John accepted his gift very gracefully, merely saying that he'd no notion that his yarn would be misinterpreted.

The point is that so jovial a little spiel's importance should be so overly dealt with by as big a functionary as the United States president. If that isn't a compliment, I'm no judge of 'em.

One-Way Humor.

What the executive mansion chronically lacks currently is a sense of humor. It plays horse persistently with the newspaper crew, but it wants no reciprocation.

Mrs. Roosevelt is as sensitive as the president.

Her girl callers have to be as careful as the boss's.

It runs all through bureaucratic politics.

A censorship isn't so bad that's choked off in advance, but this stuff oozes out and then is called to time after it's appeared in print.

Then it's too late to do anything about it.

It'll be worse, too. The censorship will be getting tighter.

Listen World!

Air Borne

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HE WENT out laughing with them through the brightening dawn, that day they bombed Japan. Just another American kid. Lieut. William G. Farrow, 23, of Darlington, S. C., was his official rating. I suppose they called him "Bill" at home. The paper clipping which I have before me grins like Bill. But that blurred print is almost nine months old. For that brave, laughing boy did not come back from Tokyo.

Only one message has arrived in all these months—one statement which has blanched each reader's lips. An Axis broadcast saying that four Allied fliers had been captured—"were detained" — "were being punished." It is not well to think what they may mean.

Today his broken mother's letter lies on my desk. She does not ask that I shall do him homage for his sacrifice. She only knows that I, too, had a boy who died. And so perhaps I'll understand how she must feel through nine long months which may mean worse than death.

And, with her letter, she has sent the private code the boy wrote for himself when he set out to war. There is not space to quote all that he chose to say — nor for her boundless agony and fear. But here are some few deathless things which one American of 23 bore in his heart when he went out to fight for you and me. First, with a youngster's fumbling fingers he wrote

"MY FUTURE"

Then, with the gravity of youth, he scanned his dreams

"My aim . . . I'm going into some branch of aviation. I have only to apply myself daily toward this end to achieve it. But first I must enumerate my weaknesses and seek to eliminate them. Then I must seek to develop the qualities I need . . . it will be hard but it's the only way. Work with a purpose is the only practical means of achieving an end.

"My weaknesses? Lack of thoroughness and application . . . lack of curiosity and sober thought . . . lack of self confidence—

"The cure? To stay in glowing health . . . to work hard on each day's lessons—

"TO STAY CLOSE TO GOD—DO HIS WILL AND COMMANDMENTS. HE IS MY FRIEND AND PROTECTOR. BELIEVE IN HIM - TRUST IN HIS WAYS—NOT TO MY OWN CONFUSED UNDERSTANDING OF THE UNIVERSE.

"Do not waste energy or time in fruitless pursuits—learn to act from honest, fundamental motives—simplicity in life leads to the fullest living. Order my life—in order there is achievement; in aimlessness, there is retrogression.

"Fear nothing—be it insanity, sickness, failure— always be upright—look the world in the eye.

"KEEP MY MIND ALWAYS CLEAN - ALLOW NO EVIL THOUGHT TO DESTROY ME. MY MIND IS MY VERY OWN, TO THINK AND USE AS I DO MY ARM. IT WAS GIVEN ME BY THE CREATOR TO USE AS I SEE FIT. BUT TO THINK WRONG IS TO DO WRONG.

"Never be discouraged over 'nothing'! Turn a failure into success!"

There are some of the words with which a young laughing soul called Bill girded himself as he went into action. Grinning, he felt his wings lift as he took to the sky that day they bombed Japan. And was air borne!

I feel no joy in Japan's bombing or any other land's. But this I know

Wherever Bill may be, there'll flame no whiter candle than his own young faith—no sweeter incense than his loyalty. There are the tests for which God fashioned men. He was air borne before he knew the sky. God grant him passage through its night and storm. And bring him safely home.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Jan. 2, 1923.

College Place, 151 West Third street, originally a college for women, but more recently an apartment house, was sold by J. W. Mykrantz to Nicholas Haring.

Mansfield rifle club secured range in basement of Fred Stecker's new cigar store on North Park street.

Birth report: Son to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sumption, 187 East Third street.

LeRoy Craig, who enlisted in the army in 1917, was back home for his first visit in five years.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Appleman moved into their new home on Glenwood boulevard.

Will G. Herrold, Harry Ackerman, Fred L. Boeck and H. E. Herrold went to Mishawaka, Ind., to attend convention of salesmen.

L. D. Thompson moved from Lorain to 278 South Main street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On Jan. 2, 1776, the United States flag was first raised in camp by General Washington. It had red and white stripes but no stars.

Golf A Casualty.

Perhaps more than any other sport, golf has felt war's toll. Practically all of the big tournaments have been called off. Many of the game's leading professionals are either in service or working in war industry plants. As an example of the trend, this year's Miami open drew but a handful of the game's big name stars and the course was not overrun by spectators, either

The American people are just not in a mood these days to spend hours watching a husky, six foot two giant hitting a little white ball around when they think what he might be doing to the Japs in the Solomons.

Nor are they likely to look with favor upon temperamental holdouts in baseball. Men and women who are doing their best to help win this war don't particularly enjoy laying down good money to see healthy athletes drawing down Eleanor's legal limit for chasing flies in the outfield.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Setting Stage for Food Rationing, 'Point System' Will Be Explained

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I think I might as well tell you that everyone will not get as much of every kind of food as he or she wants. There may not be as much pleasure in eating but just the same there will be enough for an adequate and healthy diet. . . ."

WITH these words, part of an extraordinary message to Americans during the week, Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard set the stage for another wartime control over civilian life, already controlled as to how much and where Americans may travel, how much they may earn, and to a great extent, where they may work or serve in the war effort.

In a few thousand carefully-chosen words, Wickard and OWI Chief Elmer Davis told the country that canned food rationing was just around the corner of the new year; but no one, they said, will get hurt if each plays his part.

A Tip-Off?

Conditioned for the shock by recent shortages of meat and butter, most Americans took the announcement calmly. In Washington, though, there was angry reaction from legislators who called the disclosure "unfortunate" and "ridiculous," and from the agriculture department's retiring consumer counsel, Donald E. Montgomery, who said it tipped off "trade speculators, pantry hoarders and pocketbook patriots."

Boiled down, the plan covered the nation's present and forthcoming supplies of canned, dried and frozen fruits and vegetables and their juices, as well as soups, exempted only a few items such as olives and spaghetti — items upon which the pack has been sharply reduced because of the container shortage.

Point System.

And to the critics who called the announcement premature, Wickard and Davis had an answer: The rationing will be on the point system, with which Americans must familiarize themselves between now and early February.

It means that every consumer will have the new War Ration Book No. 2, shortly off the press, and from the colored, lettered and numbered stamps in the book will be built the point system to prevail for the duration.

The number of points required for various items—not yet determined by Wickard — will depend upon supply and demand, and may fluctuate from month to month. But, throughout the country, points-per-item will be uniform, informative posters must appear in each store.

The Cut: 25 Per Cent.

To Americans who might inquire the "why" of rationing in a land of plenty, Wickard and Davis emphasized that about 25 per cent of all the food produced in this country next year would go to the fighting forces and this country's allies. Of the allies, Davis commented:

". . . Don't forget that to some extent this exchange of food works both ways. Some British food, and a great deal of Australian food, is supplied by the governments of those countries to our troops who are stationed there. The total sent to our allies is less than what is supplied to our own armed forces; it is small compared to what is left for us at home."

At Home

Post-War Blueprint.

While President Roosevelt busied himself with the prosecution of the war, one of his right-hand men, Vice President Henry A. Wallace, took up the matter of the peace—perhaps to represent the aims of the present administration in a post-war world.

It was the anniversary of the birth of Woodrow Wilson, who fought for reorganization of world politics at the close of another war a quarter-century ago.

Wallace listed four points: "To preserve the liberty, equality, security and unity of the United Nations — liberty in the political sense; equality of opportunity in international trade; security against war and business depression due to international causes; and unity of purpose in promoting the general welfare of the world."

Appended was another proposal, the "psychological disarmament" as well as the military, of Germany and Japan—supervision or inspection of the school systems "to undo the diabolical work of Hitler and the Japanese war lords in poisoning the minds of the young."

Husbands to Arms.

Childless married men entered the new year with the promise by Selective Service officials that they would share with 18-19-year-old draftees the military demands for an estimated 3½ million men in 1943. The armed forces plan to muster 9,700,000 men in uniform this year exclusive of commissioned officers.

To do this 250,000-300,000 men in the 18 to 37 age brackets must be inducted monthly into the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Since the pool of single men between 20 and 38 available for military service is virtually exhausted, draft boards will be forced to call married men without children to meet early 1943 quotas, may have to summon 3-A men with children to meet late 1943 needs.

Words on Music.

When the right kind of music goes round and round a war plant, the tanks and guns come out here at a faster clip than in factories not wired for sound. Harold Burris-Meyer of Stevens institute of Technology reports from a controlled study of war plants that with music:

Production is greater than without music.

Monday morning absences, a serious production drag, drop from 22 per cent in man hours to less than 3 per cent.

Hymns stop work as effectively as a fire gong; marches and fox trots get the best response.

Factory music should be re-written and arranged for factory tempos. In one musical factory Burris-Meyers found careful selection of songs and planned musical arrangements boosted the already better-than-average production 14.8 per cent.

Warning note: "Deep In the Heart of Texas" won't help. When the workers stop to clap hands, production drops.

How to Enjoy China.

Latest edition in the War Department's series of handy guidebooks for itinerant soldiers deals with the etiquette required of a foreigner in China.

The best passport, the booklet suggests, is to say "Waw-uh sher! May-ay gwaw bing," which means "I am an American soldier." Other helpful hints:

"Never slap a Chinese on the back; they don't like it a bit."

"The 'face' about which you hear so much means only self-respect. Don't look down on non-white people or you aid Japanese propaganda which asks why fight for the white man."

"Remember that in China the attitude toward women is different from ours in America . . . The average Chinese girl will be insulted if you touch her, or will take you more seriously than you probably want to be taken. A mistake in this may cause a lot of trouble."

Tube Turnback.

To the campaign of turn-in-the-tubes, the WPB has added another one—the radio tube.

Shortly after the first of the year, the board said, purchasers of new radio tubes will be required to turn back the old ones, parts of which can be reclaimed and used again.

At the same time, WPB slashed from 700 to less than 120 the number of tube types to be produced. It said 90 per cent of the country's radios can be serviced from this pool, the remainder from existing stocks.

Abroad

Quick Death.

When the Russians began to fight their way out of the German ring around Stalingrad a few weeks ago, they calmly announced a "quota" for Nazi-slaughter—1,000 men a day.

During the week the terrific offensive was still rolling, and if the Soviets hadn't miscounted German bodies, they were doing a little better than their quota.

Bursting south from Stalingrad, the men of Stalin gained their vital objective of Kotelnikovski, a key railroad center, and reported that in 17 days of fighting, they had slain 19,000 Germans. But that was only part of the Russian story; another flanking movement was underway in the Rostov sector, and a juncture of the two Red armies promised to entrap 300,000 Germans in the Caucasus area.

All along the 2,000-mile front, Germans were in retreat or frantically seeking to roll with the Russian punches.

Quotes

Bernard M. Baruch: "Although I am not a supporter of the Moscow system of government, I am an admirer of the bravery of the Russian people and I am deeply grateful for what their effort means to us."

Walter M. Jeffers, rubber administrator: "There are about a million tons of rubber in the tires of our automobiles. This is enough, if properly taken care of, to bridge the gap between the present critical condition and the time when synthetic production will be sufficient to take care of the slack."

Slow Death.

Out over the blue Pacific west of Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal, Japanese planes drilled in, loosed dozens of parachutes that drifted toward the beach, their boxes of food and ammunition swinging like pendulums.

But American light bombers got there first. Swooping low, the supplies were bombed and strafed with machine guns.

It was another cat-and-mouse act in the slow, painful war of attrition in the Solomons. During the week, there was evidence that the American effort to starve to death the isolated Japanese garrison was succeeding.

A marine dispatch disclosed that Japanese supplies have been kept from Guadalcanal for at least six weeks, and that scores of dead Japs had been found, victims of disease or malnutrition.

Giraud Approved.

The stunning death of Admiral Darlan plunged the delicate African situation to the edge of catastrophe, then, in another crazy quirk of the war, apparently solidified the Allied position. Darlan had brought about a cessation of hostilities—saving thousands of American lives—and he maneuvered vital Dakar into the Allied camp, but he was despised by the Fighting French, mistrusted in England, criticized in America.

Two days after General Giraud was named by the imperial council to succeed Darlan, compliments were flying from the De Gaulle camp, London was satisfied, Washington called him "the best man available." De Gaulle laid plans for a Washington conference with President Roosevelt, formal repudiation of Vichy's armistice with Germany, by the imperial council, was in prospect.

Desert Fox Yelps.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, frequently reported to be Adolf Hitler's personal choice to head the entire Nazi army, apparently has a characteristic in common with his boss—he can find a fall guy when things go wrong.

From the Libyan battlefield during the week came the report that Rommel had caused the transfer of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Mediterranean air commander, to the Russian sector because Kesselring had been unable to halt the RAF.

Whether the Afrika Korps would benefit from the shift (reported new commander: Field Marshal Erwin von Witzelben) seemed doubtful, as it fell back steadily to less than 200 miles from Tripoli. Certainly, with the Soviets rampaging the length of the Russo-German front, the new job looked like no ring-around-the-rosie for Kesselring.

In Short

Granted: By OPA to the nation's gasoline dealers, permission to increase prices to provide a 3-cent retail margin over cost.

Announced: By film actress Rita Hayworth, that she will marry Victor Mature—when they are divorced from their present mates, and the war is over.

Decorated: With the Distinguished Flying Cross, in North Africa, Lt. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, for photographic reconnaissance flights "made voluntarily with complete disregard for his personal safety."

Died: At Columbus, O., Billy Church, 50, famed minstrel-show tenor, plugger of sentimental ballads ("Just A Baby's Prayer At Twilight" and "Someone More Lonesome Than You"); in New York, Edna Hibbard, 47, ex-Broadway stage star ("Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"); at Lockport, N. Y., William C. Morgan, 72, credited with originating the game of volley ball.

Replies Given To Questions About Service

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please explain the difference between Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve. Also the Navy and the Naval Reserve. O. M.

The Coast Guard Regulars are for general service duties; temporary members are for service only on vessels loaned to the Coast Guard through the Coast Guard Auxiliary. Regulars are exempt from service under Selective Training, but temporary reservists are not exempt. The ranks correspond, but the Reserves do not include a rank above that of lieutenant commander.

Enlistment in the Regular Navy is for six years. In the Naval Reserve, the term is two, three or four years, and the Reserves may return to civilian life as soon as possible after the War. In the Regular Navy, age limits are 17 to 31; in the Naval Reserve, 17 to 50. In the Regular Navy only unmarried men with no dependents are accepted. In the Naval Reserve, married men may enlist, but they must be able to support their dependents.

Altogether, requirements in the Naval Reserves are less strict than in the Regular Navy.

Clothes Allowance.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A sailor is allowed $133 worth of uniforms when he enlists. What about a soldier? J. B.

When a soldier enlists in the Army or is drafted, he receives seventy-nine articles of clothing and equipment. These are estimated to be worth about $150.00.

Military Salute.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Does a private salute all officers in the Army or just his own superiors? Does a sailor salute all officers in the Navy or just his commanding officer?

PUZZLED.

The military salute is the courteous recognition between members of the armed forces of our country. The salute is a privilege enjoyed only by members of the military service in good standing; prisoners do not have the right to salute.

Those entitled to it are all officers of our Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. The Army salute salutes the Navy and vice versa. It is also customary to salute officers of friendly foreign countries when they are in uniform.

ce at the hands makes North's contract appear hopeless, but a second look will reveal the importance of the third little diamond in North's hand. East led the spade 2 to the A and the diamond Q came back to the K. The spade 5 knocked out the A and the diamond 7 then eliminated the A of that suit. Since spades were divided four-four, East could cash only two more tricks in that suit, making a total of four for his side. When he then led a club, North, of course, scored game easily, including four diamond tricks.

As it happens, 5-Diamonds could have been made, too, with the loss of only two trump tricks.

South's second bid, his sign-off rebid, was an easy one to make, but his first was not. He made it mainly in the hope that his partner's next bid would be spades, in which case he would have furnished a very useful dummy, with all of that distribution. In counting up his hand, he reckoned he had three probable playing tricks in his six-card diamond suit, and a good plus value with his club Q. Anything better than three playing tricks makes enough for a suit response, in his book, when he is prepared for a signoff rebid. Well, it worked this time, anyway.

Prima Donna Business Pays 15%

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Features Writer)

PARTNERS: Opera star Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Captain Frank Chapman, consider a musical score.

Gladys Swarthout runs a business. The prima donna business. It pays her fifteen cents on the dollar.

When she and her husband, Captain Frank Chapman, discuss the glamor-spangled career that has taken Miss Swarthout into bigtime radio, concert and grand opera they say:

"It's a business. It has expenses just as any other business does. Management takes 20 per cent to begin with. Add to that the cost of advertising, public relations, costumes, trainers, accompaniment, secretaries, traveling expenses and hotels. In the last seven years we find we get fifteen cents on the dollar."

The prima donna business has presented a number of new problems to Miss Swarthout this year. Since she and Mr. Chapman, also a singer, were married more than 10 years ago he has directed her career and affairs. Now he is a captain in the United States Marine corps. And Miss Swarthout is carrying on alone.

"When he left, I just thought I could not go one," she said the other day in her beige and copper toned New York drawing room. "Then I began to ready my fan mail in its entirety. There were so many letters from boys in the service, speaking of some song I had sung, that I began to feel this was my way of doing something to help in these times. So I kept on.

"I think in the past I depended too much on Frank. I always waited to ask him, 'Darling, what do you think?' Since I have had to work alone these last few months, I have had to draw more from myself. And I feel I am stronger now than I was before.

"But whenever I sing on the radio, I sing directly to Frank. He always listens in and then telephones me and tells me what he thinks of my program."

To most people a prima donna's career means flowers, jewels and applause set against a background of music and pink lights. Actually it means a lot of hard work.

Chief thing on Miss Swarthout's agenda now is her Sunday radio program. Forty-five minutes a week. But behind that 45 minutes lie hours of work in selecting songs for a program, Monday final program building, Wednesday accompanist rehearsal, Friday rehearsal for timing and sound effects and Sunday rehearsal of four hours with the band before the program.

Miss Swarthout generally leaves on Monday or Tuesday for a concert in the south, west or midwest. That means more program selection, costumes, interviews and a long train trip. More than once this fall Miss Swarthout has boarded her return train in the middle of the night to find that her reservations have been sold twice and someone is asleep in her compartment.

Since colds are every singer's bugaboo, she has virtually given up dancing, which generally means going into a warm, crowded room. She gets most of her relaxtion and fun at the Chapman's Connecticut farm.

Miss Swarthout keeps careful account of the costumes she wears and the program she sings in every concert, so that she won't repeat herself. For the last seven years she has worn the same dress at every first concert in every town where she sings. It's a beautiful red wool with a fitted bodice, a long full skirt and shirred sleeves. Original cost $200; average yearly cost now down to $27.27.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"He didn't speak for almost a second," Mary said. "Then he began to yell again.

"'You can't do this to me,' he literally howled. 'I'll tear him into inch pieces and throw them at you.'

"And then," Mary said flushing, "he added something which would have sent Noel berserk if he'd heard it. Even now my cheeks burn to think the operator probably listened in.

"Don't tell me if you don't wish to," I said.

"But I do wish you to know it," she said. "I can't cope with it by myself, and of course I can't appeal to Noel.

"'You little two-timer,' Steve said. 'Ive noticed Hayes playing up to you, and I suppose you're carrying the torch for him now, and giving me the go-by. Well, that's all right with me, just so he doesn't horn into my part. But if you're scheming to get him any role, you'd better look out for yourself. Now you go see your father-in-law and tell him I'm coming to the theater tonight, and that I will be ready to play my role. Do you hear?'"

"The beast" I exclaimed. "What did you tell him?"

Obeys Spencer.

"I wish I could have told him what was on my lips," she said vindictively, "but I probably would have been arrested.

"There was only one thing I could do. I remembered your father's injunction to let things go on a few nights more, until he could clamp down on Steve, so I pretended to be very upset, and with a quaver in my voice I said, Steve, you frightened me! You're either terribly sick and delirious or you're drunk, or you've gone crazy. You know there isn't a word of truth in what you're saying.

"'Nobody's trying to take your role away from you,' I told him. 'Father Veritzen thought you were too sick to go on, that's all. I'll tell him what you've said, then he'll probably get in touch with you.'

"'If he doesn't,' Steve growled, 'I'll get in touch with him. And you'd better do what you say you're going to do, or you'll hear from me — and you won't like what you hear.'

The Real Redfield.

"There was something queer in his voice that I never heard before," Mary went on. "Do you suppose that knock on the head Noel gave him has sent him batty?"

"No, I don't suppose anything of the sort," I retorted. "More than anything else in the world he values his place as an actor, idolized by women fans. Any threat to that strips off his veneer of civilization and reveals the unpleasant and sinister person beneath."

"I fancy you're right," she said, "but I still don't know what to do."

"Do exactly what you told him you would," I said. "Go to your father-in-law, play down Steve's actions and say simply that he called you and was greatly upset because he had heard that an understudy was to play his role tonight. Say that Steve insists he will show up at the theater, that you promised to take that message, and told Steve that no doubt Mr. Veritzen would get in touch with Steve."

Madge as Bodyguard.

"You always know all the answers, darling," she said, then sprang up and smoothed her hair. "I think I'll run along up there now," she said. "Will you stay here—I won't be a minute—or will you come along?"

"I think I'll go with you," I said. "With Steve in a slightly berserk mood, I'd just as soon you didn't go roaming around the corridors alone."

"Now," Mary said teasingly, "what could you do to defend me?"

"You might be surprised," I said, lightly, as I felt through my dress the small silencer pistol I almost always carry with me.

"Experience has taught me never to be surprised at anything you may spring," she told me, "and, fooling aside, I don't mind telling you I'll feel a lot better if you're with me. But come along! I want to hurry back, for fear Noel should come back."

The stars of "The Spoilers" are reunited in "Pittsburgh," opening today at the Madison. Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott and John Wayne present the lives and loves of modern pioneers who have grown up and prospered together with Pennsylvania's great industrial metropolis. Action of the story follows the careers of the trio and their struggle which eventually is absorbed by the war effort. A speech that enabled Miss Dietrich to sell several million dollars worth of bonds is contained in the film. "The Falcon's Brother," the first in a new series of "Falcon" stories, completes the bill.

War Drama.

Nevil Shute's great novel, "The Pied Piper," returns in film form to the Ritz screen Sunday to depict again the memorable cross-country trek of a crotchety Englishman and a straggling group of youngsters across the south of France just ahead of the German guns. Starring Monty Woolley, famous actor of the legitimate stage, in the title role, the picture deals with the band's continuous encounters with the Gestapo and the way the latter wilted under the Pied Piper's caustic wit. Roddy McDowall, Anne Baxter and J. Carroll Naish are in the picture. "The General Died at Dawn," with Gary Cooper, is the co-feature.

Pioneer Drama.

Stirring story of post-Civil war days in the Lone Star state, "Men of Texas," the Park attraction opening Sunday, features Robert Stack, Leo Carrillo, Brod Crawford, Jackie Cooper and Anne Gwynne. Stack and Carrillo have the roles of Chicago newspapermen assigned to cover territorial disturbances in the wide open spaces of the great southwest while Crawford plays a masquerading bandit. "Meet the Stewarts," the co-feature, presents William Holden and Frances Dee in a comedy about a young couple who discover that love on a budget is fun . . . for other people.

COUPLE WED THURSDAY TO LIVE IN MICHIGAN

Miss Ruth E. Brandenburg Becomes Bride of Robert L. Klingman in Ceremony Performed By Her Mother.

AT 8 O'CLOCK Thursday evening, Dec. 31, Miss Ruth E. Brandenburg and Robert L. Klingman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Klingman of Grand Rapids, Mich., were united in marriage in the Church of the Nazerene. The bride is the daughter of Rev. Lena Brandenburg, 33 Reba avenue, who performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with palms and lighted by two seven-branch candelabra. Single tapers marked the aisle. Louis Stambaugh furnished the nuptial music at the piano, playing "Abide With Me," "Because" and "The Wedding March." Miss Ethel Echelberger sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."

For her wedding, the bride chose a princess model of white slipper satin with a full skirt and train. The long, tight bodice buttoned down the back. The gown had a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. A halo of seed pearls and lilies held in place the bride's veil which extended into a three yard court train. She carried a white satin Bible covered with roses and sweet peas. Streamers of white sweet peas cascaded from the prayer book. Mrs. Thoburn Harper served as matron of honor. She was attired in a gown of moss rose moire taffeta made with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves.

The gowns of the bridesmaids, the Misses Esther Welsh and Ethel Echelberger, were fashioned along the same lines as that of the matron of honor. The color of the attendants' gowns was peach. Each bridesmaid had a shoulder corsage of roses and sweet peas tied with matching ribbon. Little Martha Duffey and Joy Wallace, flower girls were in frocks of pink silk. They carried a bouquet from which they scattered rose petals in the aisle.

The bride's mother wore a beige afternoon frock with a shoulder corsage of mixed flowers.

Thoburn Harper served as best man for Mr. Klingman. Ushers were Norman Bloom and Harold Mattox.

The couple will reside near Grand Rapids, where Mr. Klingman is a chemistry teacher.

Women's Aid Sews For Red Cross

The Women's Aid of the Pennsylvania raliroad held a holiday party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. W. Gustin, 475 Wood street.

Mrs. C. N. Shultz and Mrs. H. M. Wappner were associate hostesses for the one o'clock dessert luncheon. After an exchange of gifts, the group spent the rest of the afternoon sewing for the Red Cross. The place of the Jan. 28 meeting will be announced.

Miss Fike Weds Dr. E. Lofquist

Attired in a street length gown of midnight blue velvet with navy accessories, Miss Arline Fike, daughter of F. H. Fike, route 5, Mansfield, became the bride of Dr. Elmer E. Lofquiest of Butler.

The ceremony took place Dec. 23, at 8 o'clock p. m. Rev. Ira D. Archibald read the single ring ceremony at his home in Butler. The bride is a graduate of Madison high school and was employed by the F. W. Woolworth company before her marriage.

Dr. Lofquiest has been practicing chiropractics in Butler for a number of years. Dr. and Mrs. Lofquiest will make their home in Butler.

DINA CASHMAN + + +

CHAPTER XXV

Dina remained behind with her mother and Donny; two days later she and Hall returned with the big car, and the last members of the Cashman family were taken in state to the new home.

By this time, she hoped, Art and her father and Myrna would have the yellow house in some sort of order; she was pleasantly surprised, upon arriving, to find that they had taken the business of settling in very seriously and that the place already presented a homelike and orderly aspect.

Rogers had seen to it that the rugs were laid and the old curtains freshly starched, restored to place at the shining windows. To the Cashmans it was incredible that there should be so many big comfortable chairs, so many deep bureaus.

When Dina and her mother arrived El'ner and Lou were shyly making friends with two pigtailed small blonds from across the street, Dooley was putting scalloped oilcloth on kitchen shelves, and Myrna was trilling joyously at the piano.

Only superficial tasks were left; the distribution of a grocery order; directions to the nice young man who came to connect the telephone; arrangements of the family's shabby small addition of sheets and towels with the comfortable stacks of linen already in the linen closet.

"Me with a linen closet; Pa'll have a vallay next,' Ethel Cashman observed.

Dina sat watching them all in the light of the warm spring afternoon. There was an apple tree outside the kitchen window; there were roses and flat lilies and marigolds in the garden. Everybody was busy: laughing, coming and going.

She felt herself far away from them now: she was tired, and the prospect of being taken quietly home through the green countryside, presently to be resting on her wide bed in her own big room, presently to go downstairs in the taffeta dress and sit telling Rogers all about it, was infinitely restful.

It was some three months later, on a chilly, windy July afternoon, that the evening papers had the news; there had been an accident on the Bayshore highway; Rogers Holland, who had been driving the car, was only slightly bruised, but Mrs. Holland, his only passenger, had been taken to the hospital in a serious condition.

The morning papers confirmed the story and added that Mrs. Holland's little daughter had been born some hours after the accident.

"Save me everything the papers say about Margaret!" Dina said when Rogers came into her room at midnight. "You've been crying," she reproached him. "And what a bruise! And your hand tied up!"

"I was scared about you," he said. "You—you're wonderful! I [illegible] to see what a sport. I think you are and they all say you are!"

"She says you could stay three minutes. [illegible] you see the baby?"

"I'm to see her now."

"She's [illegible] tly whole, anyway," [illegible]. "I made them [illegible] I was afraid going [illegible] k might have [illegible]. They said I was [illegible]."

"To have your legs set while you were having a baby."

"Rogers, don't be disappointed in her. Black hair and red spots. She looks so much like a baby that I almost pushed her off the bed!"

"You better let go dear. They'll throw me out."

She had been clinging to his hand.

"It was awful, Rogers!"

He said nothing now, but his eyes reddened.

"But it's over. I had chosen [illegible]. Imagine Rogers' [illegible] you at home and [illegible]"

"I know. [illegible] what an affec[illegible]. And Geraldine have you thought of this? The accident [illegible] care of the question of [illegible] there won't be any [illegible] now."

"You mean her coming to [illegible]." Dina's eyes [illegible] pale [illegible] [illegible] still clinging to her [illegible] were still an [illegible] of anesthetic. She [illegible] hospital [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] something [illegible].

[illegible] matter now [illegible] and all [illegible] mother [illegible] her Margaret [illegible] her mother. My name is Margaret Geraldine. [illegible] "Is that all right with you?"

"It was my mother's name too."

"I know. Is that all right? I'm still a little dopey so don't be afraid of minding me." Dina broke off to say, "I'm slap-happy."

"You won't be slap-happy tomorrow. Why wouldn't it be all right? Another Margaret Holland."

"I didn't know." She looked straight at him. A nurse came from behind a screen at the door.

"Mr. Holland—I'm sorry—but this girl was smashed all to pieces at noon today and she's had a baby."

"I know! Good-bye, dear. I'm going to see Margaret. What is it?" For she had beckoned him back.

"Only this, Rogers. I've known it all day long," Dina whispered. "I'm still stupid. I'm not quite sure where I am or what's happened. But just this last hour or two—when I waked up with my leg in plaster and Margaret here—I've known it. I'm awake!"

It was strange to be invalided. It was strange to lie day after day in her big comfortable room, with Mrs. Bucket coming in morning and afternoon to stop and gossip, Miss Rafferty, the nurse, bringing up trays, and Ida, the gentle, quiet colored woman, taking full charge of little Margaret.

The broken leg had knitted satisfactorily and in record time; the fracture had been slight and there had been no need of pulleys and weights, but a tedious complication had developed in the other leg long before Dina was allowed to walk, and the weeks stretched into months, and still there seemed to be no change in sight.

They had brought her home from the hospital in ten days, miraculously escaped from the accident that might have killed both her and her child. Dina was patient. She conceded a four-or five-week imprisonment in bed. A broken leg and a baby were a bad combination, and, after all, she wanted to get quite well while she was about it.

But the joking stopped for a few days when she realized that as one leg came steadily back to normal the other began to show signs of poisoning and that all the courage and patience she could command were going to be needed in the long weeks ahead. For a while it seemed to her that she could not face it, and Rogers came in more than once to find her unable to keep back the tears.

She had never been ill. She had looked forward to the care of her baby, to peaceful days in the old house when she and her child would be alone for hours.

Instead her room became the center of an unwonted activity. Friends who had not come to the Holland home for years appeared with good wishes and presents for the new Holland baby; messengers with flowers and with telegrams came and went, and the tiny Margaret was regularly displayed by her beaming attendant to afternoon callers.

But with the rapidity characteristic of the invalid who does not suffer, and with her own active mind and imagination to aid her, Dina presently settled to the inevitable and found her days surprisingly full. Miss Rafferty, whose affection and enthusiasm and sympathy were in themselves a cure, was busy with her for an hour or two after her leisurely breakfast. When the newspapers and the tray, the soaps and towels and basins had gone the baby came in, and her bassinet was placed where her mother, looking downward, could study the small placid face for quarter hours together. Before Margaret's 2 o'clock and 6 o'clock bottles Dina could hold her for a blissful interval, and now and then when Margaret roared in the night Ida brought her in to her mother while a warm meal and a dry crib were being prepared.

Every day the little Spanish nun came over for a lesson, and Dina worked hard at her written exercises. In midafternoon, when the baby slept, she dozed, and afterward she was helped into her prettiest nightgown and her jacket, and callers found her fresh and philosophical and there was much laughter in the room.

Sometimes Rogers came up to join the women, and Dina rejoiced to see that he grew more and more to enjoy these visits and these visitors, when Lily would bring up trays of tall glasses and the talk turn to old days. Rogers' mother had been a social leader and a friend to all these women as young girls or younger wives.

There was much congratulation for the father of the small, sturdy, flourishing Holland baby, and he accepted it pleasantly and watched Margaret's progress with almost as much interest as Dina's own.

The big victrola had been moved upstairs, and after a few games of cards after dinner, when Dina grew tired of her somewhat cramped position, there was a concert. Rogers brought records upstairs, assorted them and arranged them in order, and himself went about lowering lights and placing chairs.

Dina would settle on her pillows, Miss Rafferty come in quietly to slip into a chair, Rogers lie back in his own great leather chair, and the glorious strains of operas, Rosenkavalier and Rheingold, Boris and even Iolanthe, would drift through the quiet place. Dina came to know Tschaikovsky's symphonies; Beethoven's majestic sonatas, Vienna waltzes, and Russian ballets. Sometimes tears would be on her cheeks as she listened; she would open her eyes to smile across the room at her husband.

"Chopin," he would apologize. "Too sad for you!"

"No, I love it!" And she did love, even though it seemed to have the power to wash away all the changes and pain of the past years and take her back again to the wild, gay, gypsy little Dina who had mothered her brothers and sisters at ten, and camped wherever her parents' fickle fancy stopped the shabby car, and dreamed of a future in which whatever happened she, Dina Cashman, would always be a leader and an idol.

She played patience if ever there was a dull hour; she had books of puzzles and became so absorbed in them that often the announcement of a visitor caused her a pang of regret.

And she had books; an endless river of books poured through the room, Mrs. Bucket rarely entering without one or two that she had picked from the old library downstairs, Rogers instructing a San Francisco bookseller to keep her supplied with what was new.

Above all, there was the baby for an inexhaustible distraction, joy, pride, anxiety, and responsibility. All the women in the house circled about Margaret, and the slightest fluctuation in her little routine caused them wild excitement.

Miss Rafferty, the tiny, dainty, always immaculately clad nurse, would go skimming downstairs for fresh bed linen or a malted milk from the refrigerator; Chong would come puffing upstairs with the baby's bottle; Ida, the colored girl, and Lily, the upstairs maid, debated daily as to just what corner of the sun porch should be honored by the crib, Mrs. Bucket was early convinced the baby knew her and repeatedly sent both maids off to an evening's movies for the express purpose of being left in charge of the sleeping infant.

What Dina thought of her small daughter nobody could have said, least of all Dina. The familiar phrase "having a baby" and the cataclysmic, world-shaking experience of having brought Margaret into the world seemed to have nothing in common.

It had taken her to new depths of terror and suffering and raised her to new heights of joy.

These were her secrets; she could share them with no one. But she liked to lie still at night and bring them to memory like treasures to be turned over and hugged to her heart in the darkness or to waken before the summer dawn, when a pearly light was in the room and Margaret, fussing for her first meal could be heard in the adjoining apartment, and remember it all again.

Of the accident she had no impression whatsoever. On that fatal morning Rogers had been driving her to the city. Andrew Havens had been at the house earlier in the day, adding some finishing touches to her portrait.

The portrait had been completed weeks earlier, but Andrew's exhibition had been postponed until the fall and he wanted to lighten the shadow on Dina's face—so he said—give more life to her hair. Dina and Rogers had been talking casually as the car approached the underpass entering South San Francisco.

RITES SUNDAY

Services For Mrs. Ruth Warner Will Be In Galion.

GALION — Mrs. Ruth Anna Warner, 79, residing eight miles southeast of Galion with her son, Heber, died Friday morning in City hospital, following an illness of the past 10 days. Peritonitis caused her death.

She was born in Congress township, Morrow county, May 4, 1863, a daughter of Isaac and Mary Mitchell Linn. Her marriage was to Edward Warner, who died in May, 1940.

Surviving are two sons, Herbert and Barsa Warner, both living southeast of Galion; six grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Clara Maxwell of Mt. Gilead, and a brother, Elzie Linn of Morrow county. She was a lifelong resident of Morrow county and was preceded in death by three brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Snyder funeral home in Galion where friends may call any time. Rev. Segrist, pastor of the Bortner Reformed church southeast of Galion will officiate, and burial will be in the Shauck cemetery near Johnsville.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

Max Diner Enjoys Unique Prestige Among City Restaurants

Food Grown On A. D. McNew Farm In Richland County.

With 14 years of hospitable service chalked up to its credit, Max Diner, 15 South Walnut, has long since come to be a Mansfield tradition in good eating. Its owner, Aker D. McNew, is an important part of that tradition.

Max Diner is operated almost entirely by members of the McNew family which is noted for friendliness and industry . . . traits which have worked creditably toward the reputation the restaurant now enjoys in Richland county . . . a reputation for a varied menu of excellent food served with real courtesy and efficiency.

The secret of the quality of Max Diner food probably lies in the fact that a large portion of it comes directly from the 100 acre Richland county tract of the McNews, "Honeywall Farm," four miles west of Bellville.

Here, Mr. McNew supervises the raising of chickens, hogs and beef to provide milk and meat for his restaurant.

The day we talked to Mr. McNew, he and a farm hand had just arrived from Honeywall with a load of potatoes and pumpkins for consumption at Max Diner.

Vegetables grown on the farm in the good old summer time are refrigerated and preserved for winter use at the restaurant.

It is interesting to note, too, that corn is grown at the farm for cornmeal and corn cakes and wheat for breakfast and dinner rolls . . . providing special treats for Max Diner customers.

These home grown products are carefully and deliciously home cooked according to the high standards set up by Mr. McNew during his 40 years in the restaurant business.

Born in Honaker, Virginia, Aker McNew served his first meals in a country store in the Cumberland mountains "back in the good old days."

McNew says that when the boys were "talked out and got hungry" they bought a can of tomatoes or corn, opened it up and ate the contents. He thought the thing over and decided that he could open a can himself, provide a spoon and increase his profits. So he bought a roll of oilcloth, spread it out over a couple of boards, pulled up some nail kegs and invited the boys to eat. It was a good beginning.

In fact, Aker McNew has been an "idea" man all his life . . . has had his capable finger in many interesting pies.

He talks as blithely about Hong Kong or Peking, San Francisco or Manila as he does about Main street, Mansfield. During the Spanish American war he served under General Arthur MacArthur in the Philippines and remembers the time General Douglas MacArthur came from West Point as a first lieutenant to visit his father there.

McNew chuckles as he talks of the native Filipinos who own nothing but a G string and a bolo . . . in fact, he has a bolo as a souvenir . . . only one of several interesting items in treasured collections which include a group of hats which hang on his apartment wall and a collection of antique guns. One of these was carried by George Jones, brother of the famous John Paul Jones. Another was taken from one of the most desperate slave runners in the Old South by a buddy of McNews, then a North Carolina sheriff.

McNew also has among his relics one of the first music boxes manufactured in the United States . . . a copy of an old Swiss music box.

McNew has really "been around." He homesteaded 160 acres in the Black Hills of Dakota . . . learned about oysters, so he says, on a Maryland farm for which he "swapped" the western tract.

He trouped all over the States as a black faced comedian; has managed a theatrical booking agency. He is now interested primarily in his herds of thoroughbred Black Angus cattle and Berkshire hogs. Mr. McNew insists that he has always been attracted to black hogs and black cattle as well as "black sheep."

This interest in those less fortunate than himself he manifests in his various philanthropies which include regular contributions to Boys Town and to six Children's Homes in the state.

McNew is also a history enthusiast, with interest centering in Richland county historical records.

He is looking ahead to the local bowling tournament, coming up soon and is planning, as usual, to sponsor a team. He is especially interested in boxing, having once been a professional boxer. This, he says, he learned while he was in the army where, he explains, grievances are settled with boxing gloves and you take a lot of beatings if you "don't aim to get good" . . . which McNew evidently did.

Of his many pursuits, McNew is most proud of the fact that he was a good soldier and is happy that a son, Eddie, is now serving in the quartermaster department of the armed forces.

Post War Trade Opportunities Discussed

If full advantage is taken of technical advances in materials, construction, and marketing practices, the American housing industry can look forward to an almost unlimited need and demand for new housing in post-war America, Federal Housing Commissioner Abner H. Ferguson declared this week in an address before the conference of the United States Savings and Loan League at Chicago.

"When the war is over," Mr. Ferguson asserted, "we will find a country with trade prospects in unheard of amounts. We will find a country with a welled-up demand for peace-time products of all kinds, with thousands and thousands of houses needing deferred repairs, and with a backlog of new houses variously estimated at from 900,000 to 2,000,000 a year for 10 years."

Mr. Ferguson warned, however, that the housing industry must modernize its operating methods if it is to reap the full benefit of these opportunities.

"We cannot continue to build houses piece by piece, as shoes were made a hundred or more years ago, if we expect to get the price of houses down to a point where they will appeal to the mass market," he said.

In citing the wartime developments which have cleared the way for sweeping modernization of the housing industry, Mr. Ferguson laid particular stress upon the valuable experience gained under the war housing program with prefabricated or factory-built houses, and upon the tremendously expanded production capacity being developed in new materials such as aluminum, plastics, plywood, magnesium, and synthetic rubber.

Mr. Ferguson also advocated greater development within the housing industry of well-capitalized construction companies to bring the benefits of large-scale production to residential building. With large volume operations, such companies could reduce the cost of houses through purchase of land and materials in volume, through prefabrication, and through the possibility of furnishing constant employment to their labor, he declared.

Mr. Ferguson defined the three broad areas for post-war housing operations as the production of improved houses for sale at prices substantially below those previously prevailing, the development of improved methods for building and financing rental housing for that section of the population which prefers to rent rather than to buy their living quarters, and resumption of slum clearance combined with the rehabilitation of blighted city areas.

He also foresaw intensified planning in the post-war housing market, both as to neighborhood developments and on a city-wide basis. To provide for well-balanced city development, factual studies should be available on population trends, income ranges, transportation, the distribution of schools and recreational facilities, and the location of business and employment centers, he declared. Land use and occupancy will need to be specified, including areas for publicly financed slum clearance projects and those reserved for development by private capital.

On the neighborhood scale, Mr. Ferguson predicted an increasing number of self-contained residential communities, equipped with schools, parks and playgrounds, and shopping centers.

Trippi Shines as Georgia Wins, 9-0

Sparks Bulldog Attack With Sinkwich In Game Only Long Enough To Score

By EDWARD W. COCHRANE, INS Sports Writer.

PASADENA, Cal.—Place the name of Charley Trippi, a 20-year-old sophomore of the University of Georgia, on the honor roll of American football, the list that contains only the great players—the standouts over a long span of years.

It was Trippi, a modest youth from Pittston, Pa., standing 6 feet one and weighing 180, who ran and passed his team to a 9 to 0 victory over the U. C. L. A. Bruins in the Rose Bowl yesterday and broke a five-year winning streak of Pacific Coast champions over eastern and southern invaders.

With Frankie Sinkwich, the No. 1 player of the year, on the bench most of the time with injured ankles and of little value except for a two-yard drive to a touchdown, Trippi acquitted himself brilliantly. He crowned his year's work with a performance that indicates he will be an outstanding star for the next two years at the Bulldog school.

It was Trippi who made 115 yards of the total of 212 his team made by rushing. It was Trippi who did most of the passing, his mates gathering a total of 161 yards by the aerial route. His passes were better than those of Sinkwich, the latter making a few of the 12 passes complete out of 30 attempted. It was Trippi who had much to do with the tight forward pass defense of the Georgia eleven which made the great passing of Bob Waterfield, the long hurling flipper of the Bruins, of little value.

At no time did the Bruins threaten to score, but five times the 90,000 people who packed the Rose Bowl saw the Bulldogs almost on the Bruins' goal line. Only once were they able to cross it. It is possible that they would not have crossed it at all except for the blocked kick which gave the Bulldogs a safety in the final quarter and changed the aspect of the game and the style of play of the Bruins.

In the first quarter, when Georgia looked to have a chance to score from the Bruins' 18-yard line, Sinkwich was sent in to pass for touchdown and the ball was knocked down. Late in the same quarter the Bulldogs were on the Bruins' 28 when Sinkwich was inserted again and his pass was intercepted by Solari.

In the second quarter Trippi hit the line and ran the ends until he put the ball on the four and a half yard line. Despite the fact that he had been averaging five yards every time he carried the ball, he was jerked for Sinkwich and the famous star failed in his three attempts to put the ball across.

Sinkwich came near being the goat of the annual post-season classic when his fumble cost Georgia a touchdown in the third quarter. Trippi, displaying remarkable generalship, with the aid of Van Davis, had fought his way to the Bruins' 28-yard line when Sickwich again came into the game, but Trippi stayed in.

* * *

Two Sinkwich passes clicked and the ball was on the Bruins' four. Trippi and Sinkwich put it on the one with two line smashes. With two downs left to gain the final yard, Sinkwich started around right end and in the open fumbled the ball which Herb Wiener recovered.

The turning point came as the fourth quarter opened. Waterfield went into his end zone to punt and "Red" Boyd blocked the punt, the ball going back for a safety. With Georgia leading, Waterfield went to the air in a desperate attempt to score.

Shortly after that a Waterfield pass was intercepted by Ehrhardt on the Bruins' 25. Trippi hit right tackle for 15 yards. Sinkwich failed to gain and then Trippi hit the line for six and Van Davis ran right end to the two-yard line.

Sinkwich then plunged through right tackle for the touchdown and Costa converted.

Alabama Crimson Tide Turns On Power to Stop Boston, 37-21

By JACK WOLISTON, UP Staff Correspondent.

MIAMI, Fla.—Alabama played its heart out and came from behind to win the hard way and today added the Orange Bowl crown to an impressive string of post season victories.

The Crimson Tide rolled over Boston college 37 to 21. The 30,000 fans saw 'Bama turn what looked like certain defeat into decisive victory.

Boston, collegiate champions of the east, beaten only once during the regular season, opened the game like a sure fire winner. Big Mike Holovak, the Eagles great all-American back, romped 63 yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later Holovak scored again, taking a lateral from Ed Doherty and racing 35 yards to the double stripe.

Mickey Connolly split the uprights for both extra points.

At the start of the second period, Alabama was perched on the Boston 14. On the first play, Russ Mosley flipped a short pass to Wheeler Leeth on the five who scored standing up, to climax a 60-yard drive.

Little Red Mangene fumbled the Alabama kickoff and Don Salls recovered for the tide on Boston's 34. Then Salls and Johnny August moved to the Boston 18. Taking to the air, August tossed to Ted Cook in the end zone. Big George Hecht missed the conversion again and Alabama trailed 12 to 14.

Starting from 42, August, Russ Mosley and Russ Craft moved to the Boston 40. Bobby Jenkins swept around left end for a touchdown, and 'Bama was on top.

A few minutes later Holovak chalked up his third score of the afternoon, crashing through guard from the two-yard stripe to terminate a 70-yard drive. But with one minute to play in the period, Hecht booted a 15-yard field goal and the half ended with Alabama holding a 22-21 lead.

A tired Boston eleven, riddled with injuries, threatened several times in the last half. Alabama added a touchdown in the third period, Johnny August scoring on a 15-yard dash, and another six points in the final stanza when Jenkins smashed over from the one-foot line. The Tide's all-American center, Joe Domnanovich, tackled Connolly in the B.C. end zone for the final two points.

Texas Line and Speedy Backs Beat Georgia Tech

(By United Press)

DALLAS, Tex.—Dana Xenephon Bible, the little bald football coach of the University of Texas Longhorns, could run for governor of Texas today and win hands down.

For Bible ended 20 years of coaching yesterday by piloting his Southwest conference champions to a 14 to 7 triumph over the favored Engineers of Georgia Tech in the Cotton Bowl. And the partisan crowd of 36,000 observed his strategy and gave a roaring ovation.

Bible depended on the forward wall and the hard running attack that carried the team to the circuit crown and with it stopped the second best team in the tough Southeastern conference.

That Longhorn line and two hardy Texas backs, Roy McKay and Jackie Field, supplied the margin of victory. McKay, the workhorse of the team, kicked off, punted, passed, ran and kicked an extra point. Field turned in a dazzling 60-yard run for a third period touchdown that provided the winning margin. The line smothered Tech's vaunted Clint Castelberry, the 155-pound freshman, and staged a goal line stand in the game's fading moments to prevent a tie.

Six times Tech smashed into Texas territory, but only once was it able to hit pay dirt. Texas threatened three times — and scored twice.

Early in the game Texas recovered a fumbled punt on its 48. With McKay's passing and running providing the spark, the Longhorns went 52 yards, scoring from the two on a pass from McKay to Max Minor. Field added the point for a 7 to 0 Texas lead.

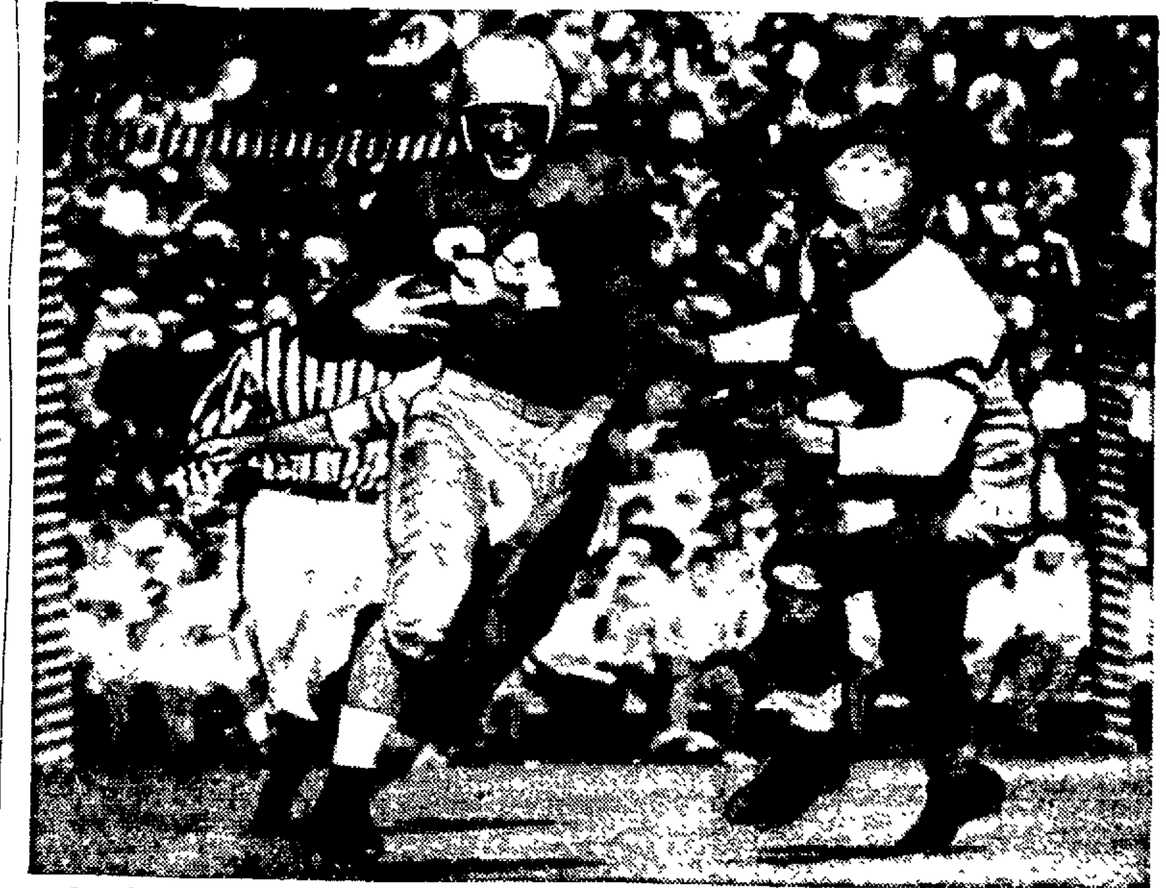
That Texas front wall made three more stands before the half ended, stopping Tech on the Texas 29, the 30 and 20. Texas then made a threat of its own in the third period, driving to the 10 before losing the ball. Field took the return punt on its 40, eluded a tackler and, behind perfect blocking, went 60 yards for the second Texas score. McKay converted.

Charles Arrives For Bivins Fight

CLEVELAND — (INS) — In fine shape after a period of working out in New York, Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati Negro sensation, was to arrive in Cleveland today for his next Thursday night 10-round battle with Jimmy Bivins, dusky Cleveland top-ranker.

The pair will square off in the second NBA-sanctioned light heavyweight "duration" title bout, with the winner meeting Anton Christoforidis, who last week decisioned Nate Bolden of Chicago and forced him out of the tournament.

Georgian Gains as UCLA Falls In Rose Bowl



Georgia's Lamarr Davis (61) eludes UCLA tacklers to gain yardage during the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., which Georgia won by a score of 9 to 0. The annual New Year day classic drew 90,000 fans.

Marion Five Tops Shelby

But Whippets Hold League Leader to Six Points.

SHELBY—The Shelby Whippets lost a North Central Ohio league cage game, 32 to 26, last night to Harding high school on the Edison Junior high school floor at Marion but held the league's leading scorer, Dick Mulvaine, to only six points.

Mulvaine, who made 35 points for Marion in the Bucyrus game, received three personal fouls in the first quarter and was taken out of part of the game.

* * *

Marion led throughout the game. The Whippets staged a rally during the final period to come within four points of the Harding score just before the gun went off. A basket made by Guy in the closing minutes put the game on ice for Harding.

* * *

The score stood 10 to 5 at the end of the first period, 22 to 8 at the half and 26 to 17 going into the last period.

Ralph Higgins, Shelby guard, was the high scorer in the game with 10 points.

It was the fourth win in five games for Marion and its second consecutive league victory, putting it in a tie with Ashland for the league lead. Shelby has won one game and lost two.

Youngsters Save Tennis Tourneys

NEW YORK—(UP)—The United States Lawn Tennis association, after a successful season with "youngsters," plans to carry on with this brand of competition in 1943.

Two South Americans and one European gave the game its only international touch in 1942. They were Francisco Segura, the colorful two-handed youngster from Ecuador; Aleo Russell, the suave Argentinian, and Ladislaw Hecht, the former Czech Davis cupper.

Ted Schroeder jr., of Glendale, Calif., became the national amateur champion when he defeated former Davis cup star Frankie Parker in the finals at Forest Hills.

Pauline Betz of Los Angeles captured the women's crown by knocking off favored Louise Brough, University of California student.

Lt. Gardnar Mulloy of Jacksonville, Fla., and Billy Talbert of Cincinnati, took the men's doubles crown while Miss Brough and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, captured the women's tandem title. Miss Brough and Schroeder won the mixed doubles championship.

Harvard Rallies For Cage Victory

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Harvard university's cage team staged a last-minute spurt to nip Michigan State, 30-28, last night and win the first game of its midwest tour.

Bunditt was high scorer for Harvard with 11 points and Guard Dan Pjesky paced Michigan State with eight.

Eastern All Stars Top West For Single-Point Victory

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—A one-point victory, won the hard way, restores a measure of prestige to the East in the annual East-West All-Star football series.

The eastern stars, coached by Colgate's Andy Kerr, defeated the West, 13 to 12, yesterday before 62,000 attending the 18th renewal of the Shrine benefit game held this year for the benefit of the Shrine Crippled Children's hospital and army and navy relief. It was the first victory for the East since 1937.

Going into the game as 10-7 favorites, the easterners had to come from behind in the fourth quarter to win. With the West leading, 12 to 7, Fordham's Fullback Steve Filipowicz, smashed over from the one-foot line after a 57-yard run by Max Kielbasa of Duquesne.

* * *

The West had a statistical edge, piling up 13 first downs to six for the East, and lost several scoring chances when passes were intercepted. In all, the West traveled 176 yards on the ground to 153 for the East and 217 yards in the air to 103 for the East.

Green Purdue Team Faces Tough Big Ten Cage Task

(By United Press)

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Ward (Piggy) Lambert, Purdue's firebrand basketball coach, is convinced the first 25 years of college coaching are the hardest so he expects to take the current campaign in stride.

The Lambert stride definitely is of championship standards. While the Boilermakers do not at the moment rate as a championship threat of the caliber of Illinois and Wisconsin they must be rated as dangerous.

Lambert has been tutoring Purdue basketball teams since 1917 and has a record that is unmatched by any coach in the country. "Piggy's" quintets have won 335 games, while losing 133 for a percentage of .747 against all comers. His record in Big Ten competition is 206 victories as against 85 losses for a mark of .707.

Only twice in Lambert's 25 year regime has Purdue finished out of the first division in the conference standing. Last season the Boilermakers tied with Minnesota for fifth place with nine triumphs and six setbacks.

Purdue's squad of a year ago was riddled by graduation and the enlistment of Co-Captain Elect Bob Riley in the navy. Gone are outstanding performers like Don Blanken, Forrest Sprowl, Jack Tierney, Charles Caress and Cecil Polk. In their place is a bevy of sophomores.

The squad is green, but it boasts an abundance of height and Lambert's proven coaching genius may turn it into a winner once he gets all units co-ordinated.

Key man of the Purdue plan is Allen Menke, a six-foot-four inch junior center. Menke was one of the Big Ten's outstanding sophomores last season and scored 116 points in conference play. He's looked even better in early games this season and has accounted for 54 points in five games.

A pair of six-foot, three inch performers, Letterman Floyd Lawson and Sophomore Ed Ehlers appear to have clinched the starting guard berths.

Lambert has employed a variety of combinations at forward with three sophomores, Myrwin Anderson, Bill Kercheval and John Kennedy, and Letterman Howard Hoffman and Junior Paul Friend getting the most attention.

Purdue has defeated Wabash, Butler and Washington university of St. Louis, while losing to DePaul and Notre Dame and Toledo in its early games.

The Boilermakers open the conference schedule Jan. 9 against Chicago.

Tennessee Crushes Tulsa With Straight Power, Wins 14-7

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS, La. — It was power vs. passing in the Sugar Bowl, and power won.

Power doubled and redoubled, got credit today for the 14-7 victory of the bone-crusher Tennessee football team over a hard-fighting Tulsa.

Seventy thousand fans saw the Volunteers win.

Tulsa tailbacks Glenn Dobbs and N. A. Keithley tried 27 passes and 17 were completed for a total gain of 168 yards. The Tulsa average was 43 yards for 14 kicks, outdoing Bobby Cifers, ace Tennessee back who led the nation last season.

But other statistics told the story. Tulsa lost 39 on running plays and stalled attempts to pass, while the Vols gained 209 yards running the ball besides taking 100 yards in losses for penalties. Cifers and Walter Slater, his substitute and almost his equal, accounted for most of the Vol gains.

Tennessee scored two touchdowns and a two-point safety, the latter off a blocked kick.

Little Tulsa, champions of the Missouri Valley Conference, suffered its first defeat since Arkansas beat it the last game of 1941.

'Bama Stopped on This Play

Bobby Jenkins, Alabama left halfback, is stopped by a wall of Boston college tacklers during the New Year day game in the Miami Orange Bowl. After trailing 14 to 0 in the first quarter, Alabama roared back to beat Boston college by a score of 37 to 21.

Galion Defeats Bucyrus Cagers

Big Third Period Puts Game On Ice For Orangemen.

GALION—In the first North Central Ohio league game of the season, two rivals fought it out on the Galion Junior high court Friday night, when Galion high school Orangemen defeated the Bucyrus Redmen, 39 to 31.

One of the fastest games played here this year, the lead alternated during the first half. At the end of the first quarter Bucyrus was leading by one point, 11 to 10, while the half ended with Galion ahead by one point, 16 to 15.

Bucyrus slowed down in the next period, the quarter closing 31 to 21 in Galion's favor. In the last quarter the visitors rallied for 10 points while Galion made only eight. Capt. Charles Heskett led his Galion cagers in scoring 12 points.

* * *

The preliminary game resulted with Galion Reserves winning over Bucyrus 33 to 15. Crissinger, Galion forward, made 12 points to lead the Galion Reserves.

SAYS COLLEGE FOOTBALL SHAKY IN ROCKIES

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UP) — F. Elton Davis, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Wyoming, predicts that college football may be "thrown overboard" in Rocky mountain schools in 1943.

Davis said the long distances the teams had to travel in the region, coupled with increasing transportation difficulties made the immediate future of sports in the area "very shaky."

Baseball Decision Nearer

Moguls Decide Tuesday on Reduction In Traveling.

By JACK CUDDY

(United Press Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Now that football has been tucked away with the magnificent elaboration due a dauphin, we can concentrate on the wartime plight of the king of American sports—baseball—which must accept a drastic diet of miles or fold for the duration.

Baseball, a travel sport, eats up miles during both the training and playing season. But travel-miles today are on a par with beef as food for the war efforts. Hence the importance of Tuesday's meeting at Chicago, where major league club owners and officials will give the game a ration card for 1943.

To reconcile the diamond divertissement with the wartime transportation shortage, baseball must come out of Tuesday's meeting with training and playing schedules that will meet with the approval of Joseph B. Eastman, defense transporation director. Eastman conferred this week with baseball's high commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis, and it is believed that they agreed in principle upon methods to pare travel to the marrow.

Landis submitted tentative schedules to Eastman. The schedules will be offered to the club owners at Chicago on Tuesday. Until then no one knows for sure what they require.

* * *

It is almost certain, however, that the new documents will provide for spring training at sites as close as possible to home cities, eliminating long hauls to Florida and California. Also, spring exhibition tours will be abolished and neighborhood exhibitions substituted probably.

* * *

Concerning the playing season, which earlier was slated to start April 13 and to include the normal 154 games, two substitute plans may be offered: (1) to limit the season to 140 games, opening April 24 and (2) to play the full 154 games over a shorter season starting April 27, but jamming in plenty of doubleheaders in the warm weather weeks. Both plans would eliminate considerable travel among the 16 major league clubs.

The majors already have agreed upon three intersectional trips during the 1943 season instead of the usual four.

Unquestionably there will be dissenters at the Chicago meeting, for the blueprint may threaten some of the mogul's dividends. But this time, it appears the brass hats will have to "take it and like it." King baseball is going on a strict diet of miles—or else.

Walter Berry of Boise, Idaho, brought down a duck with his first barrel, but it fell into a puddle on the wrong side of the channel. One of Berry's companions retrieved the duck, carried it a few yards, then tossed it to the successful hunter. But when the "dead" duck reached the zenith of the toss, it suddenly spread its wings, squawked, and flew away. Berry gave it his second barrel, and this time it stayed down for good.

According to some of the best authorities, the huge sulphur-bottom whale is the largest mammal that ever lived upon this planet (even including the prehistoric monsters). It has been estimated that a single specimen of this species would tip the scales at around 294,000 pounds, or 147 tons. And that is a powerful lot of mammal.

The periodic floods of Cattaraugus Creek provide Everett R. Burmaster, a former curator of anthropology, a profitable sideline. The waters uncover numerous black walnut logs, aged for centuries in the sands. Burmaster drags them out and sells them to gun stock makers. Some of the logs contain bullets identified as used in the French and Indian wars in the 1800's.

Now that Uncle Sam has clamped down on the manufacture of fishing tackle until further notice, it will really pay any angler to make sure his tackle box contains items which are "musts," if he is to continue his fishing. Yuncker's stocks are still quite complete, and it would be a wise idea to get those essential things, while they are yet available.

Just as soon as cold weather arrives, the bat seeks a dark building, cave or hollow tree, where he can remain unconspicuous while sleeping the winter away. Here he will hang head downward by his hind feet, until the insects begin to fly again in the spring.

The Virginia rail knows all about air raid precautions. It bends sedge and cattail stalks down over its nest, forming a roof over its nest, that hides it from any winged predators that may be soaring about.

STOCKS EXTEND RECENT RALLY AS YEAR OPENS

Department Store Sales Are Up 15 Per Cent, Federal Reserve Estimates.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks generally extended the recent rally by fractions in today's first market of 1943.

Improved at a quiet opening were Bethehem, Chrysler, Standard Oil (NJ.), Sperry, Texas Co., International Harvester and N. Y. Central.

Merchandising shares came in for further study as the federal reserve board estimated department store sales on a nation-wide basis for the week ended Dec. 26 exceeded the comparable period last year by 15 per cent when spending was at exceptionally high level.

ILL FOR YEAR

F. H. Kiefer, 65, Succumbs at Hospital; Rites Monday.

Franklin Henry Kiefer, 65, who resided at the T and A hotel, died Friday in Mansfield General hospital after a year's illness.

Born in Morrow county, Mr. Kiefer came to Mansfield 36 years ago becoming engaged in the contracting and timber buying business. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge.

Survivors are: Besides his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Glenn Walters, Lexington R. D. 1, and Mrs. Lauren Warzak, Chicago; four sons, Lloyd Kiefer, Mansfield; Private Ralph Kiefer, of Camp Wallace, Texas, Private Carl W. Kiefer, of Washington, D. C., and Master Sergeant Clinton Jay Kiefer of Ft. Tatten, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. Livinia M. Cockley, of Galion, Ohio, and Mrs. Lottie Ruggiero, Oakland, Calif., seven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. with burial at Shauck.

DIES AT AGE 65

Mrs. C. I. Helbert Claimed by Death at Ashland.

ASHLAND – Mrs. Charles I. Helbert, 65, died unexpectedly sitting at her home, 540 Pleasant street, New Year eve. She had apparently been in good health. Death was caused by a heart attack.

The wife of Charles I. Helbert, local shoe merchant of the firm of Helbert and Shenberger, Mrs. Helbert was born April 21, 1877, near Jeromesville. She was married Dec. 23, 1897 and came to Ashland with her husband to live Feb. 22, 1898.

She was a member of the Methodist church, the West Sandusky Street circle and the Anti-Can't Sunday School class of the church and the Monday Night Social club.

Survivors are her husband and two grandchildren, Harry R. and Shirley Ann Shenberger of Ashland R. D.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the home by Rev. F. L. Hicks, pastor of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

MACK TRUCK HEAD DIES

NEW YORK –(P)– Emil C. Fink, native of Cincinnati, and since 1937 president and chairman of the board of Mack Trucks, Incorporated, died in a hospital here yesterday. He was 61.

forces—the army, navy, marines and coast guard—which coordinate their strength and skill against the enemy.

"Let the enemy take such consolation as he may from the thought that this raid is only a sample of things to come."

Jap Zeroes Bag Three U. S. Aircraft

WASHINGTON —(INS)— American forces on the mainland of Alaska today were braced for a Jap air attack following the appearance of Zero float-type planes on Kiska island in the Aleutians, which shot down three U. S. aircraft with the loss of only one plane.

U. S. flyers, however, carried the war to the Japanese with bombing attacks and kept a ceaseless vigil through air patrols.

Meanwile, other Yank pilots in the South Pacific carried out similar harrasing attacks on Jap bases in the Solomon islands. There was a lull in ground fighting on Guadacanal but patrols of marines and soldiers still were wiping out pockets of Jap troops.

Two of the American planes shot down in the Aleutians were the latest type Lockheed P-38 "Lightning" fighters. There was some surprise evidenced that four Jap Zeros could down two of the American pursuit ships. However, it was pointed out that the job of the Lightnings apparently was to serve as escort for bombers over a target, which makes their position much more difficult than if they were sent out alone to combat.

Curtin Appeals For Pacific Strength

(By Associated Press)

Australia's Prime Minister John Curtin has urgently appealed "to the proper quarters" to strengthen Allied forces in the Pacific and drive back Japan's far-flung invasion hordes, it was disclosed today.

Curtin's representations followed a statement on Thursday in which he declared that "the United Nations in the Pacific area are being denied resources for their total war effort."

The prime minister had also asserted that Japan was consolidating her conquests and that "delaying an offensive against her makes it certain that the offensive when undertaken will experience greater resistance."

Curtin's argument was underlined by the continued difficulty of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's expeditionary force in wiping out the last stubbornly-defending Japanese troops in the Buna sector in New Guinea.

"Fighting is savage and desperate and is continuing," the latest bulletin from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said.

Official dispatches said Allied troops had driven another wedge into Japanese positions along the narrow Papuan beach corridor, with tanks and artillery cutting a path for the new thrust to the sea.

Strongly entrenched, the Japanese apparently still held footholds at Giropa Point, Buna government station and Sananandа.

GROUP HONORS RECENT BRIDE AT HOLIDAY PARTY IN CRESTLINE

CRESTLINE – In compliment to Mrs. Melvin Snyder was the holiday party given by Mrs. Arvine Kindinger at her home on North Thoman street recently.

Approximately 20 were present and included were members of Ruth Missionary Circle of Calvary Reformed church and the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Libens.

The party opened with a mock wedding in which all took part and for which the hostess' two sons, Arvine, jr., and Donald, acted as ushers.

The group hemmed linen towels, the gift of the hostess to the bride, and also made a scrap book.

A white Bible to which was attached a corsage with long streamers was also a gift to the bride who found a shower of miscellaneous gifts concealed about the home by means of notes attached to the ends of the streamers.

The Circle also gave the honoree a set of dishes. A tiered wedding cake with tall tapers at either side decorated the serving table which was appointed in a color scheme of pink and white.

Mrs. Snyder before her recent marriage was Marian Libens.

A pretty holiday party was that given by Miss Mary Agnes Kellar when she entertained a group of teacher associates at her home recently.

A social time with cards and knitting occupied the group and a gift exchange was held. Tall tapers and other holiday decorations were used on the dining table when the hostess served a luncheon.

Their Raid on Wake Island Biggest of Year

Army fliers at an undisclosed Pacific base don life belts before taking off for a raid on Jap-held Wake Island. Below, Brig. Gen. Howard Raney (left), base commander, congratulates Col. William Matheny, leader of the flight after the completion of the raid which was described as the biggest of its kind in the Pacific war theater. The total distance flown by the raiders was the longest so far attempted. All men returned safely.

British Bombs Hit Docks at Akyab

NEW DELHI —(P)— RAF Blenheim bombers attacked the Japanese-occupied port of Akyab on the west coast of Burma yesterday in a follow-up to daylight assaults on coastal shipping and a raid on the airdrome at Shwepo, a British communique reported today.

Bomb hits were reported on the dock area at Akyab and on airfield runways at Shwepo. The sweeps were carried out without the loss of a single aircraft, the bulletin said.

The communique also disclosed that British land forces had clashed again with Japanese patrols east and west of the Mayu river near Rathedaung, some 5 miles northwest of Akyab.

including Cleveland, have advanced. Local buyers must pay a competitive price to the producers since many Richland county dairymen and farmers sell directly to the Cleveland markets.

The price of milk delivered to homes in New York is 17 cents and in Chicago 16 cents.

An economic stabilization program is under way, OPA headquarters announced, with prices to be returned to their present levels after it is put into operation.

This Should Be Good News For Milk Drinkers

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(U.P.)— Prof. P. S. Lucas, of the Michigan State college research staff, predicted today that if chocolate shortage continues children who refuse "plain milk" will get it flavored with root beer, butterscotch, raspberry, strawberry or caramel.

Lucas said the college had been experimenting with flavored milk and that strawberry and root beer syrups already were on the market. He said the other flavors would be offered soon.

He said the college also was seeking to develop fruit coatings to replace chocolate on ice cream bars.

TELLS OF RAID ON WAKE ISLAND

Flier Describes Excitement as Bombs Crash Down From Flying Fortresses.

raid were decorated. Later the men lined up at the command of Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, chief of the seventh air force. As he scanned the formation he said with great pride:

"Just look at them. This was their first combat mission, and it was highly successful. We can't hold these boys now. They are 'raring to go. The crews were organized less than four months ago when they finished their schooling.

"They did a marvelous job and they are bubbling over with marvelous spirits."

Most of the men came out of aviation schools in the United States after last July. Lieut. Zamperini explained how carefully the crews were put together with men being shifted about steadily until a completely harmonious group had developed.

"If anyone didn't like everyone in this outfit he was shifted to another group," Zamperini said. "Then we trained like a football squad."

Zamperini's bomber was near the end of the line as the formation came over Wake Island.

"The first ships were not bothered by anti-aircraft fire, but the Japs were awake when we got there," he recalled. "The air was thick with flak and tracers. One shell burst near the tail and another near the left wing.

"It was the first time I had let go with a real live bomb against the enemy. We dived and dropped the load and watched the bombs fall.

"I had only one miss. It hit the water about 20 feet from shore, but all the others got their assigned targets.

"The Tokyo radio broadcast that we 'fled in terror' and that's almost right. We lost no time in getting out.

"As we came over the target I saw a Jap pursuit ship preparing to take off and I dropped one bomb just for luck. It fell just behind the fighter and tore up the runway so that it probably had a tough time landing.

"Our crew was elated on the homeward trip but we were alert the whole way for we had seen the enemy fighters taking the air. Everyone remained at his post throughout the journey home.

"Vibrations make you very sleepy during long hops and consume more energy than running a hard mile race."

Zamperini had the highest praise for his pilot, 23-year-old Lieut. R. A. Phillips of Terre Haute, Ind.

"He certainly knows how to handle a plane," said the bombardier.

All of the men in the squadron are young, averaging no more than 25 years.

Zamperini was unable to observe the details of the damage done by his bombs although they fell in the assigned area, he said.

"The planes ahead of us had dropped incendiaries and fires were burning all over the island," he declared. The Japs appeared to have done a lot of construction work on the island.

FIVE INJURED OVER HOLIDAY

ment of lacerations and bruises. They were Josiah K. James, Mansfield R. D. 2, his wife, and a third passenger, Mrs. M. J. Wodeller, Mansfield R. D. 1.

James told state highway patrolmen he lost control of his automobile on the accident pavement two miles northeast of Mansfield on state route 545 and crashed into an Ohio Public Service utility pole.

Minor cuts and bruises were received by drivers figuring in a collision on Ashland hill Friday morning. Charles S. Cottrill, Lorain resident, admitted to the state highway patrol that he was travelling too fast for road conditions and that his car had skidded into another driven by Harry S. Leclair, Mansfield R. D. 4, as Cottrill was attempting to round a curve on the hill.

John Smith of Wellston, whose truck was found overturned on U. S. Route 42, northeast of Johnsville, Wednesday night, explained to the highway patrol yesterday that he had lost control of the vehicle because of traveling too fast on the icy highway.

Accidents throughout the country stood almost two-thirds below the total for the corresponding period a year ago, according to Associated Press reports. The decrease over a year ago when 265 violent deaths were reported on Jan. 2, 1942, was attributed to gasoline rationing and observence of the lower driving speed regulations.

Of the 265 violent deaths reported for the holiday in 1942 automobile accidents accounted for 171 of the total. This year only 74 deaths resulted from traffic accidents.

A half dozen or more minor mishaps took place in Mansfield yesterday as cars collided at intersections due to the icy pavements.

The Mansfield street department tried to keep ahead of the situation caused by snow, slush and ice both New Year eve and yestereday by scattering a mixture of salt and cinders throughout the city where driving was particularly hazardous. Three trucks worked a part of the night and day in trying to bring about better driving conditions.

New Year eve merrymakers bound for home after celebrations found highways a glare of ice and many were the cars that failed to negotiate the hills in and near Mansfield. At last a dozen cars were stalled on Ashland hill yesterday morning and the same was true of other major highways.

Dale Stevens, local orchestra leader living at 442 Hammond avenue, and Hildreth Johns, 181 Wolfe avenue, had their cars damaged to the extent of $175 when Stevens' car skidded and slid into Johns' automobile at the intersectoon of Mendota and Lexington avenue, police reports said.
